Technical Troubles, Weather Delay Flight

Drought Relief Asked

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes asked Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman Wednesday to release conservation land for grazing and haying in 31 drought stricken Missouri counties.

He said spotty drought conditions require the temporary relief in these counties:

Adair, Barry, Bollinger, Case, Cape Girardeau, Carter, Clark, Dunklin, Grundy, Iron, Jasper, Linn, Livingston, McDonald, Madison, Mercer, Mississippi, New Madrid, Newton, Perry, Putnam, Reynolds, St. Francois, Ste. Genevieve, Schuyler, Scotland, Scott, Stoddard, Sullivan, Washington and Wayne.

Bridge Will Be Reopened

POPLAR BLUFF - The repaired bridge over Black River, 10 miles north of Poplar Bluff, will be opened to traffic Friday at 1 p.m., according to the highway department.

A large portion of one span was knocked off its piers July 29 when a tractor-trailer struck it.

Since truck traffic has been routed east over highway 60 to Dexter and over 25 to Jackson, and then to Fredericktown on highway 72, for a 50-mile detour. Automobile traffic was routed over a short detour a few miles near the damaged bridge.

The bridge will be back in service just four weeks after it was damaged.

Paul Montgomery, Inc., of Poplar Bluff did the rebuilding job on the 160-foot span that was wrecked. Highway Department crews repaired a 200-foot span that was damaged. They worked from daylight to dusk, seven days a week.

Other contractors in the area donated or rented additional equipment to speed the work.

The Highway Department said a special concrete mix was used to permit early opening.

Santa Will Have Sikeston Helper

The retail merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce has agreed to employ one of Santa Claus' helpers in Sikeston druing the Christmas holidays.

The division also endorsed the American Legion's annual Cotton Carnival, to be held in Sikeston Sept. 23.

Carter Bell, division chairman, said that 19 high school bands would be in the Cotton Carnival parade.

Car Hits Pole Three Hurt

Three persons were injured when a car left highway 61, eight miles south of Sikeston, Wednesday and struck a telephone pole. A shower had made the road slick.

The accident occurred at 3:45 p.m., when a 1963 Mercury, driven by Barbara Scott, 37, Camp LeJeune, N. C., applied her brakes and skidded off the pavement. She received cuts and bruises. Her husband, Floyd Scott, 40, suffered knee and chest injuries, and their son, Michael, five, was cut and bruised. They were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

In Portageville yesterday at 5 p.m., a 1965 Ford pickup truck driven by William E. Phillips, 29, Portageville, pulled from a driveway. A 1965 Chevrolet, driven by Walter B. Dunagan, 27, Austin, Tex. was traveling south. He applied his brakes but was unable to stop in time to avoid a collision. Phillips received face cuts and was treated by a Portageville physician.

La Follette, Former Governor, Dies

MADISON, Wis. AP -- Philip F. La Follette, 68, former governor of Wisconsin, died Wednesday night at Madison General Hospital.

La Follette, son of the late Sen. Robert M. Fighting Bob La Follette Sr. and brother of the late Sen. Robert M. La Follette Jr., served three terms as the state's chief executive.

New Yorkers Tug On Windows

NEW YORK AP -- This city's water shortage is having an unexpected side result--it's got people struggling with windows that haven't been opened in years.

What they're looking for is fresh air.

It's a result of the city's limited ban on the use of air conditioning systems that use water for cooling. Restrictions imposed last week limit use to about six hours a day.

The ban came along as New York broiled. Temperatures have reached the 90s at midday and the humidity seems nearly as bad.

Two shifts of 75 city inspectors are checking for violations and informing building managers of the restrictions.

Oswald's Widow Accuses Husband

DALLAS, Tex. AP -- Kenneth Jess Porter, thrown into jail on a complaint by Lee Harvey Oswald's widow 10 weeks after he married her, denies he threatened her with a gun.

Porter told newsmen in a jail cell interview he had never carried a gun. He said he didn't know why his wife, the former Marina Oswald, took action against him, "except maybe for publicity."

Mrs. Porter, 23, the Russian-born widow of the man who assassinated President John F. Kennedy, swore out an affidavit before a justice of the peace that Porter, 27, slapped her and frightened her with a gun. Porter was jailed on a charge of threatening bodily harm and released early today on $1,500 bond.

Astronaut Resigns

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Duane Graveline, one of the nation's scientist-astronauts, has become the first astronaut to resign before making a space flight.

Graveline, 34, a former Air Force flight surgeon, thus lost an opportunity to make a trip to the moon, possibly late in this decade.

The space agency announced Wednesday that Graveline had resigned for personal reasons. It said he would remain with the Manned Spacecraft Center as a medical doctor.

Graveline's wife sued for divorce three weeks after he joined the space team.

No End in Sight for Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations between shippers and two striking unions are continuing after Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz told President Johnson that an end to the 65-day shipping strike is still not in sight.

Money matters were reported to be the principal snag as talks dragged on between the American Merchant Marine Institute, representing eight shipping lines, and the two AFL-CIO unions — the International Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots and the American Radio Association.

A third AFL-CIO union, the National Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, reached an agreement with the shippers Tuesday in what was considered a major break in the dispute which has tied up some 100 ships on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Under the agreement, based on a formula suggested by the President, the engineers agreed to go back to work while a special panel headed by Wirtz and AFL-CIO President George Meany sought to work out a solution of the key automation issue.

Enrollment at Lilbourn Schools

LILBOURN -- Students of the Lilbourn R-IV school district who will be in the first grade and in grades seven through 12 will report to the schools they have chosen to attend at 8:30 a.m. next Thursday for preschool registration.

Buses will operate.

H. B. Mitchell, elementary supervisor, said that those youngsters who will begin school as first graders should have a birth certificate and certificate that immunizations for smallpox, polio, diptheria, and tetanus have been completed or are in the process of being completed.

In order to begin school in the first grade, a child must reach the age of six years by Oct. 1 of the new school term.

Boy, 16, Sails To Honululu

HONOLULU AP -- Sixteen-year-old sailor Lee Graham with only two kittens as companions — completed a 2,400-mile voyage from California to Honolulu Wednesday night and described the trip as "pretty easy."

Docking his 24-foot sailboat, the Dove, at Ala Wai Yacht Harbor in Waikiki, the teenager said, "I had no trouble."

The California-to-Hawaii voyage was the first lap of a proposed two-year solo trip around the world.

He described the trip from San Pedro, Calif., as "pretty easy" for 23 of the 25 days. He said he was a little seasixk the first two days.

Tornado Strikes St. Clair Airport

ST. CLAIR, Mo. AP -- A small tornado struck the St. Clair, Mo. airport Wednesday and caused extensive damage.

Hunger Strike in Prison

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Warden Harold R. Swenson said most of the inmates of Missouri penitentiary refused to eat breakfast today—the third meal they have turned down in a hunger strike — so he ordered them back to their cells.

Only necessary assignments were filled today.

Swenson said the only report on the cause of the strike has been food quality—"but I can't buy that."

He said prison fare has been improved since a similar hunger strike early this month and it now is comparable to food available to persons outside the prison.

After about two-thirds of the prison's 2,433 - man population refused to eat dinner Wednesday night, the warden said, regular recreation privileges were continued. Movies were shown as usual and yard privileges were allowed.

But today a quarter of the men assigned to one breakfast line refused to eat. On the second line, three-quarters turned away from the food.

It was then Swenson ordered the men back to their cells instead of to their regular assignments in the furniture factories, tag plant and so on.

Despite being locked up the men were orderly and there was no commotion in the big cell block buildings, Swenson reported.

He said authorities have some idea as to the source of the hunger strike but the evidence has not yet been nailed down.

Legislator James Dies

MEMPHIS, Tenn. AP -- State Rep. Charlie B. James, 75, of Clarkton, Mo., died today at Baptist hospital.

The 74-year-old representative was hospitalized Tuesday night after suffering a stroke. He was transferred here from the Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett, Mo.

James, a Democrat, had been in the Missouri House since 1952 and served as chairman of the committee on agriculture.

Representative James, who was serving his seventh two-year term, was brought to Kennett Hospital at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday in a critical condition.

Survivors are his wife, Irene, two daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Brown and Rebecca Maddox, and a son, S. J. James, all of Clarkton.

U.S. Marines Smash Big Nest of Viet Cong

CHU LAI, Viet Nam (AP) — While Viet Cong survivors fled, a U.S. Marine officer said today American forces may have killed more than 600 of the Red enemy in the battle of the Van Tuong Peninsula.

Marine spokesmen said 552 Viet Cong bodies had been counted and casualties among the Marine regimental landing force that struck the entrenched guerrillas Wednesday were light.

But a U.S. military spokesman in Saigon said the Americans, fighting their biggest battle of the Viet Nam war, had suffered their heaviest loss of any single engagement in that war.

Maj. E.N. Snyder of Oceanside, Calif., operations officer for the 7th Regiment, said the estimate of more than 600 Viet Cong dead was based on aerial observation plus the body count.

The Marines were reported to have taken 50 prisoners.

The Marine regiment's intelligence officer, Maj. George H. Gentry Jr. of Fallbrook, Calif., estimated 1,200 guerrillas were in the combat zone and 800 others in the general area.

"I think some slipped out," said Col. Oscar F. Peatross of Raleigh, N.C., commander of the regiment. "However, the Viet Cong are no longer effective as fighting units in the area."

Snyder said several junks were seen taking on supplies and presumed Viet Cong and that one U.S. destroyer requested permission to fire on the junks. He said the request was denied because it was feared the gunfire would strike the pursuing Marines.

In other areas, the Viet Cong overran a district headquarters town and a special forces camp at Dak Sut, in the central highlands, and caused heavy casualties in an attack on a hamlet only 9 miles west of Saigon.

The Marines opened their operation on the Van Tuong Peninsula, 330 miles north of Saigon, early Wednesday, landing troops by helicopter and landing craft. They met heavy resistance.

Heavy weapons, air strikes and naval gunfire pounded the Viet Cong as the Marines fought their way across the peninsula. The fighting went on through the night and much of today as the Leathernecks drove the Viet Cong from bunkers, tunnels and caves.

Hope of Prolonging Life of Girl Dwindles

VENTURA, Calif. (AP)—Hope of prolonging the leukemia-stricken life of 4-year-old Joy Lynne Evans dwindled today as her chances of catching another ailment — chicken pox — diminished.

Joy Lynne was in critical condition Wednesday, showing no signs of having chicken pox after 17 days of waiting.

The little girl was deliberately exposed to chicken pox as a last resort, when her mother, Mrs. Sharon Evans, 24, said she had heard some leukemia cases were arrested when the pox appeared.

The chicken pox incubation period of 17 to 21 days ends Sunday.

Doctors indicated Joy was not expected to live more than a month.

Doctors say chicken pox is not a recognized treatment for leukemia.

Charge Poison Gas In Northern Iraq Conflict

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—The leader of the Kurdish revolt in northern Iraq claimed today that the Iraqi government has authorized the use of poison gas to wipe out Kurdish resistance and end the 4-year-old war.

Mullah Mustafa Barzani made the claim in a cable sent from Nicosia to U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant and General Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana. He appealed to them to dissuade the Baghdad government from its allegedly imminent plan to launch gas attacks.

Identical messages were addressed to President Johnson, French President Charles de Gaulle, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, President Tito of Yugoslavia and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

A Kurdish emissary said he had brought the messages to Nicosia and delivered them to the various embassies because it would have been difficult to send them from any neighboring Arab country.

Barzani's cable claimed the Iraqi government plans to make the first gas attack in the Rowandus region in an attempt to extricate the Iraqi army's 1st division.

The cable claimed Kurdish military intelligence had discovered the plan by deciphering an Iraqui military telegram authorizing the use of poison gas.

The war between the Iraqui government and the fierce mountain warriors has been going on intermittently since 1961.

No Time Set for Launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Technical problems and a heavy thunderstorms combined today to force postponement of the eight-day Gemini 5 flight of Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr.

There was no immediate indication when the flight would be rescheduled, but it was believed that another attempt could not be made before Saturday.

The effort was called off at 12:43 p.m. (EST) as Cooper and 12:43 p.m. as Cooper and Conrad tensely waited out the countdown while sealed in the cramped quarters of their spacecraft perched atop a fully-loaded Titan 2 rocket.

They had been in the space ship since 10:42 a.m. when the shot was called off.

The countdown was racing against a thunderstorm moving in from the West and had a good chance of winning, when the count suddenly was stopped at T-minus 10 minutes.

Mission control center said the count was held at that point because of a dropout in radio signals from a telemetry channel which pipes information from the spacecraft to ground controllers.

They said the trouble appeared to be in a commutator, an electronic switch which changes from one radio channel to another.

The controllers switched to a backup system and it worked fine.

When the primary system was switched back on, it was working also. But engineers expressed some concern and they wanted to take an extra 15 minutes to check it. In the meantime, the thunder and lighting swept in over the cape and drenched the launch area.

Even as the rain began pelting the launch complex, Cooper and Conrad said they still were anxious to go. Minutes later, the control center called the shot off for the day.

The astronauts were expected to stay in the craft about 30 minutes to wait for technicians to ride the elevator to the top of the tower to remove them.

Earlier, the shot had been delayed 3 hours, 18 minutes because of a problem with the spacecraft power system.

Cooper, 38-year-old Air Force lieutenant colonel, and Conrad, 35-year-old Navy lieutenant commander, originally were to have blasted off at 9 a.m. on man's longest planned space flight, during which they were to attempt a first rendezvous with another satellite.

Cooper, the command pilot, seeks to become the first man to rocket into orbit a second time. e made a 22-orbit trip to close out the Mercury program May 15-16, 1963.

This was the first time during a launch attempt that a Gemini spacecraft or rocket had been affected by technical troubles. On the Gemini 3 and 4 flights, there were delays involving launch pad equipment and tracking gear.

The experience was nothing new for Cooper. He once sweated out more than five hours in his Mercury capsule beofre a faulty radar system postponed that flight. He was launched the following day with only a four-minute delay in the countdown.

"Aw, gee, you promised a launching today and not a wet mock." A wet mock is a hearsal in which the booster is fueled.

On the Gemini 5 wet mock July 23, Cooper and Conrad also had frustrations. When the exercise was over, the service tower failed to raise because of an electrical problem and they were stranded in the spacecraft more than an hour.

Fifteen minutes after today's launch was called off, Cooper and Conrad left the capsule to return to their quarters about five miles from the pad.

Several hours after the first hold began, Cooper and Conrad were awakened, refreshed by the extra sleep and ready for the job ahead.

A hold was called at 4 a.m. with the count at T-minus 300 minutes and was extended several times until the earliest possible launch time was moved back to 12:15 p.m. It originally was scheduled for 9 a.m.

The crew wanted the fuel system, in which hydrogen is mixed with liquid oxygen, to be 100 per cent full on blastoff for the eight-day mission.

But the problem developed as liquid hydrogen was pumped into the system at 423 degrees below zero. At that temperature there was an excessive boiloff.

Lightning-Fired Sequoia Guarded by Two Indians

PORTERVILLE, Calif. (AP) — A lightning-fired giant Sequoia that was 1,000 years old when Christ was born has a guard of two Indians today, employed by the U.S. government and paid together $4.98 an hour.

Old Solo, the giant's nickname, is 3,000 years old, 54 feet in circumference and one of the oldest and largest living things on earth. Old Solo is 202 feet tall.

It towers on a lonely peak in Sequoia National Forest, east of Porterville. It was hit by lightning last week at the 120-foot level and a fire started that still smolders.

The Indians will be on the payroll until the fire either goes out by itself or is doused by storms. Snow flies early in the Sierras.

The Indians, Al Peryon and Sonny James, pitched a tent beneath the giant and are watching for changes in the fire and fallen embers. They are on a 5-day week, 8-hour day.

The government is going through all the trouble and expense because Old Solo is one of the irreplaceable attractions of the forest.

Fire fighters have used specially treated water on the fire and bombed it with liquid from helicopters.

The fire is too high for ground attack and too low for the 'copeters.

Rangers even tried to shoot a line through the branches with a bow and arrow to guide a hose.

Ben Lyons, fire control officer, said he hopes rain or snow will save the ancient sentinel.

Rangers will get supplies to the tree watchers by a four-wheel-drive vehicle. Normally Old Solo is accessible only by footpath.

Robbery Charge Against Jewel Davis Dismissed

NEW MADRID -- Because of the special election held Tuesday, an abbreviated session of the magistrate court was held this week.

In the lone felony case on the docket, Jewell Davis, charged with armed robbery, had her case dismissed upon payment of costs of $17.

Misdemeanors filled the remainder of the docket and they were disposed of as follows: Melton Backus, unlicensed operator, $15; Frank Willingham, improper operator's license and improper registration of a motor vehicle, $16; Mack Davis, improper registration of a motor vehicle, $11; Thelman Montgomery, unlicensed operator, $15; Marion Ann Bowen, no operator's license, $15; Spenser Nesbitt, permit unauthorized person to drive, $15; Harold Simmons, improper registration of a motor vehicle, $15; Arkansas-Best Freight, no Missouri PSC sticker, $110; American Red Ball Transit, no Missouri PSC sticker, $110; J. F. Barton, exceeding legal load limits, $45; Guy Daniel Eagle, defective brakes, $11; Beverly Jackson, no operator's license, $15; Lawrence Strickland, non-support, ordered to pay $30 per month support beginning Sept. 1.

NEW SHELTER HOUSE in the Morehouse city park was built by 12 boys in the neighborhood youth corps. The structure was constructed of heavy oak, which has been stained red, over a concrete base. John Bohannon directed the project.

DALLAS, Tex. AP -- Kenneth Jess Porter, thrown into jail on a complaint by Lee Harvey Oswald's widow 10 weeks after he married her, denies he threatened her with a gun.

Porter told newsmen in a jail cell interview he had never carried a gun. He said he didn't know why his wife, the former Marina Oswald, took action against him, "except maybe for publicity."

Mrs. Porter, 23, the Russian-born widow of the man who assassinated President John F. Kennedy, swore out an affidavit before a justice of the peace that Porter, 27, slapped her and frightened her with a gun. Porter was jailed on a charge of threatening bodily harm and released early today on $1,500 bond.

Lightning-Fired Sequoia Guarded by Two Indians

PORTERVILLE, Calif. (AP) — A lightning-fired giant Sequoia that was 1,000 years old when Christ was born has a guard of two Indians today, employed by the U.S. government and paid together $4.98 an hour.

Old Solo, the giant's nickname, is 3,000 years old, 54 feet in circumference and one of the oldest and largest living things on earth. Old Solo is 202 feet tall.

It towers on a lonely peak in Sequoia National Forest, east of Porterville. It was hit by lightning last week at the 120-foot level and a fire started that still smolders.

The Indians will be on the payroll until the fire either goes out by itself or is doused by storms. Snow flies early in the Sierras.

The Indians, Al Peryon and Sonny James, pitched a tent beneath the giant and are watching for changes in the fire and fallen embers. They are on a 5-day week, 8-hour day.

The government is going through all the trouble and expense because Old Solo is one of the irreplaceable attractions of the forest.

Fire fighters have used specially treated water on the fire and bombed it with liquid from helicopters.

The fire is too high for ground attack and too low for the 'copeters.

Rangers even tried to shoot a line through the branches with a bow and arrow to guide a hose.

Ben Lyons, fire control officer, said he hopes rain or snow will save the ancient sentinel.

Rangers will get supplies to the tree watchers by a four-wheel-drive vehicle. Normally Old Solo is accessible only by footpath.

No End in Sight for Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations between shippers and two striking unions are continuing after Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz told President Johnson that an end to the 65-day shipping strike is still not in sight.

Money matters were reported to be the principal snag as talks dragged on between the American Merchant Marine Institute, representing eight shipping lines, and the two AFL-CIO unions — the International Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots and the American Radio Association.

A third AFL-CIO union, the National Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, reached an agreement with the shippers Tuesday in what was considered a major break in the dispute which has tied up some 100 ships on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Under the agreement, based on a formula suggested by the President, the engineers agreed to go back to work while a special panel headed by Wirtz and AFL-CIO President George Meany sought to work out a solution of the key automation issue.

Astronaut Resigns

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Duane Graveline, one of the nation's scientist-astronauts, has become the first astronaut to resign before making a space flight.

Graveline, 34, a former Air Force flight surgeon, thus lost an opportunity to make a trip to the moon, possibly late in this decade.

The space agency announced Wednesday that Graveline had resigned for personal reasons. It said he would remain with the Manned Spacecraft Center as a medical doctor.

Graveline's wife sued for divorce three weeks after he joined the space team.

Hunger Strike in Prison

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Warden Harold R. Swenson said most of the inmates of Missouri penitentiary refused to eat breakfast today—the third meal they have turned down in a hunger strike — so he ordered them back to their cells.

Only necessary assignments were filled today.

Swenson said the only report on the cause of the strike has been food quality—"but I can't buy that."

He said prison fare has been improved since a similar hunger strike early this month and it now is comparable to food available to persons outside the prison.

After about two-thirds of the prison's 2,433-man population refused to eat dinner Wednesday night, the warden said, regular recreation privileges were continued. Movies were shown as usual and yard privileges were allowed.

But today a quarter of the men assigned to one breakfast line refused to eat. On the second line, three-quarters turned away from the food.

It was then Swenson ordered the men back to their cells instead of to their regular assignments in the furniture factories, tag plant and so on.

Despite being locked up the men were orderly and there was no commotion in the big cell block buildings, Swenson reported.

He said authorities have some idea as to the source of the hunger strike but the evidence has not yet been nailed down.

Legislator James Dies

MEMPHIS, Tenn. AP -- State Rep. Charlie B. James, 75, of Clarkton, Mo., died today at Baptist hospital.

The 74-year-old representative was hospitalized Tuesday night after suffering a stroke. He was transferred here from the Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett, Mo.

James, a Democrat, had been in the Missouri House since 1952 and served as chairman of the committee on agriculture.

Representative James, who was serving his seventh two-year term, was brought to Kennett Hospital at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday in a critical condition.

Survivors are his wife, Irene, two daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Brown and Rebecca Maddox, and a son, S. J. James, all of Clarkton.

U.S. Marines Smash Big Nest of Viet Cong

CHU LAI, Viet Nam (AP) — While Viet Cong survivors fled, a U.S. Marine officer said today American forces may have killed more than 600 of the Red enemy in the battle of the Van Tuong Peninsula.

Marine spokesmen said 552 Viet Cong bodies had been counted and casualties among the Marine regimental landing force that struck the entrenched guerrillas Wednesday were light.

But a U.S. military spokesman in Saigon said the Americans, fighting their biggest battle of the Viet Nam war, had suffered their heaviest loss of any single engagement in that war.

Maj. E.N. Snyder of Oceanside, Calif., operations officer for the 7th Regiment, said the estimate of more than 600 Viet Cong dead was based on aerial observation plus the body count.

The Marines were reported to have taken 50 prisoners.

The Marine regiment's intelligence officer, Maj. George H. Gentry Jr. of Fallbrook, Calif., estimated 1,200 guerrillas were in the combat zone and 800 others in the general area.

"I think some slipped out," said Col. Oscar F. Peatross of Raleigh, N.C., commander of the regiment. "However, the Viet Cong are no longer effective as fighting units in the area."

Snyder said several junks were seen taking on supplies and presumed Viet Cong and that one U.S. destroyer requested permission to fire on the junks. He said the request was denied because it was feared the gunfire would strike the pursuing Marines.

In other areas, the Viet Cong overran a district headquarters town and a special forces camp at Dak Sut, in the central highlands, and caused heavy casualties in an attack on a hamlet only 9 miles west of Saigon.

The Marines opened their operation on the Van Tuong Peninsula, 330 miles north of Saigon, early Wednesday, landing troops by helicopter and landing craft. They met heavy resistance.

Heavy weapons, air strikes and naval gunfire pounded the Viet Cong as the Marines fought their way across the peninsula. The fighting went on through the night and much of today as the Leathernecks drove the Viet Cong from bunkers, tunnels and caves.

Hope of Prolonging Life of Girl Dwindles

VENTURA, Calif. (AP)—Hope of prolonging the leukemia-stricken life of 4-year-old Joy Lynne Evans dwindled today as her chances of catching another ailment — chicken pox — diminished.

Joy Lynne was in critical condition Wednesday, showing no signs of having chicken pox after 17 days of waiting.

The little girl was deliberately exposed to chicken pox as a last resort, when her mother, Mrs. Sharon Evans, 24, said she had heard some leukemia cases were arrested when the pox appeared.

The chicken pox incubation period of 17 to 21 days ends Sunday.

Doctors indicated Joy was not expected to live more than a month.

Doctors say chicken pox is not a recognized treatment for leukemia.

Charge Poison Gas In Northern Iraq Conflict

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—The leader of the Kurdish revolt in northern Iraq claimed today that the Iraqi government has authorized the use of poison gas to wipe out Kurdish resistance and end the 4-year-old war.

Mullah Mustafa Barzani made the claim in a cable sent from Nicosia to U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant and General Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana. He appealed to them to dissuade the Baghdad government from its allegedly imminent plan to launch gas attacks.

Identical messages were addressed to President Johnson, French President Charles de Gaulle, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, President Tito of Yugoslavia and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

A Kurdish emissary said he had brought the messages to Nicosia and delivered them to the various embassies because it would have been difficult to send them from any neighboring Arab country.

Barzani's cable claimed the Iraqi government plans to make the first gas attack in the Rowandus region in an attempt to extricate the Iraqi army's 1st division.

The cable claimed Kurdish military intelligence had discovered the plan by deciphering an Iraqui military telegram authorizing the use of poison gas.

The war between the Iraqui government and the fierce mountain warriors has been going on intermittently since 1961.

No Time Set for Launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Technical problems and a heavy thunderstorms combined today to force postponement of the eight-day Gemini 5 flight of Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr.

There was no immediate indication when the flight would be rescheduled, but it was believed that another attempt could not be made before Saturday.

The effort was called off at 12:43 p.m. (EST) as Cooper and 12:43 p.m. as Cooper and Conrad tensely waited out the countdown while sealed in the cramped quarters of their spacecraft perched atop a fully-loaded Titan 2 rocket.

They had been in the space ship since 10:42 a.m. when the shot was called off.

The countdown was racing against a thunderstorm moving in from the West and had a good chance of winning, when the count suddenly was stopped at T-minus 10 minutes.

Mission control center said the count was held at that point because of a dropout in radio signals from a telemetry channel which pipes information from the spacecraft to ground controllers.

They said the trouble appeared to be in a commutator, an electronic switch which changes from one radio channel to another.

The controllers switched to a backup system and it worked fine.

When the primary system was switched back on, it was working also. But engineers expressed some concern and they wanted to take an extra 15 minutes to check it. In the meantime, the thunder and lighting swept in over the cape and drenched the launch area.

Even as the rain began pelting the launch complex, Cooper and Conrad said they still were anxious to go. Minutes later, the control center called the shot off for the day.

The astronauts were expected to stay in the craft about 30 minutes to wait for technicians to ride the elevator to the top of the tower to remove them.

Earlier, the shot had been delayed 3 hours, 18 minutes because of a problem with the spacecraft power system.

Cooper, 38-year-old Air Force lieutenant colonel, and Conrad, 35-year-old Navy lieutenant commander, originally were to have blasted off at 9 a.m. on man's longest planned space flight, during which they were to attempt a first rendezvous with another satellite.

Cooper, the command pilot, seeks to become the first man to rocket into orbit a second time. e made a 22-orbit trip to close out the Mercury program May 15-16, 1963.

This was the first time during a launch attempt that a Gemini spacecraft or rocket had been affected by technical troubles. On the Gemini 3 and 4 flights, there were delays involving launch pad equipment and tracking gear.

The experience was nothing new for Cooper. He once sweated out more than five hours in his Mercury capsule beofre a faulty radar system postponed that flight. He was launched the following day with only a four-minute delay in the countdown.

"Aw, gee, you promised a launching today and not a wet mock." A wet mock is a hearsal in which the booster is fueled.

On the Gemini 5 wet mock July 23, Cooper and Conrad also had frustrations. When the exercise was over, the service tower failed to raise because of an electrical problem and they were stranded in the spacecraft more than an hour.

Fifteen minutes after today's launch was called off, Cooper and Conrad left the capsule to return to their quarters about five miles from the pad.

Several hours after the first hold began, Cooper and Conrad were awakened, refreshed by the extra sleep and ready for the job ahead.

A hold was called at 4 a.m. with the count at T-minus 300 minutes and was extended several times until the earliest possible launch time was moved back to 12:15 p.m. It originally was scheduled for 9 a.m.

The crew wanted the fuel system, in which hydrogen is mixed with liquid oxygen, to be 100 per cent full on blastoff for the eight-day mission.

But the problem developed as liquid hydrogen was pumped into the system at 423 degrees below zero. At that temperature there was an excessive boiloff.

The United States' weakness in the conduct of foreign affairs was never more glaringly apparent than in its abrupt backdown to Russia and other defaulters in the United Nations.

Other countries have come to rely on the United States to pick up the check for any and all things requiring money. This includes both friend and foe. These countries, having been subsidized by the United States, owe this nation no loyalty and they give us a bad time at every opportunity.

How the United States can ever escape the role of Uncle Santa Claus is obscure. It should find the way but after the passage of many years it is just as far from the goal as when it financed World War I.

Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg has lifted the paralysis of the United Nations general assembly and restored normal relations by abandoning a showdown with Russia and other defaulting nations over unpaid U. N. peace-keeping assessments. But the price is too high both for the U. N. and for the United States.

This represents a United States' retreat and a defeat of the first magnitude but it saved the United Nations from immediate collapse and substitued slow strangulation.

It's no surprise that a majority of UN members were not prepared to enforce the U. N.charter provision providing the loss of vote in the assembly for any member falling two years behind in paying assessments. Russia, France and 11 other countries are in this category.

It's not surprising that a majority of U. N. diplomats are indifferent about enforcing the charter. It's so convenient, so easy and so customary to let Uncle Santa Claus pick up the tab.

Russia owes $62 million.

Failure to enforce the charter establishes a precedent by which financial support of U. N. activities can be withheld for political reasons. It will encourage the crippling of the world organization's peace keeping machinery.

It also will encourage other nations to rely on the United States to pay their share of any collective costs incurred in any project about which they have limited enthusiasm or to which they are opposed.

The United States was on firm ground in demanding that the defaulting nations pay up

The International Court of Justice at The Hague has ruled that all U. N. members were legally obligated to pay expenses of the peace-keeping forces in the Congo and the Middle East.

The late Adlai Stevenson, Goldberg's predecessor ambassador to the U. N., set down the nation's original position on the issue in these words:

"Rigid adherence to the law, to the charter, is essential to the charter's preservation. Once you begin to contaminate or erode or interpret the charter too flexibly, you very soon will have no sustaining body of legal structure to support the United Nations."

How true!

Less than two weeks ago, U. N. fledgling Goldberg described as "not accurate" a Washington Star story to the effect that the United States would abandon the fight to make the Soviet Union pay its dues.

The welchers are delighted. We are incensed. The U. N. is in jeopardy. Once more other nations have made a monkey out of the United States. And Goldberg is off to a bumbling start as this nation's top man in the U. N.

One of the truly great freedoms that made this nation strong is one you don't hear much about. It's the "freedom to serve" in a community, according to the national Newspaper Public Information Committee which has released the following statement:

From the hard pioneer days to the present, free people have developed a tradition of helping one another on a voluntary basis. They like the warmth that comes from being personally involved instead of sitting back and saying, "Let the government do it. I pay my taxes."

Just as the schoolhouse is the symbol of America's tradition of a free public education for all and the courthouse the symbol of the right to a fair trial for all, so the newspaper office, either in the smallest country town or the largest metropolitan city, is the symbol of this "freedom to serve."

A stranger going into any community in the nation will find all newspaper editors and publishers alike in one major respect. They all take tremendous pride in their communites.

The first thing they want to do is show you the town.

They will point out the new library, the well-lighted streets, or the shining new hospital they editorialized about for so many years before they got it.

Pick up any newspaper in America, any day of the week, and somewhere in that paper you'll find an editorial, a column, a feature story, a picture or a news story plugging for something for the town or city.

Or plugging for the young people, or the old people, or the neglected or forgotten.

Public service by newspapers is now an institution in America.

There's nothing else like it in the whole world because nowhere else in the world do newspapers take to heart this "freedom to serve" and nowhere else do they practice daily and weekly their role of community public service.

In most nations newspapers are political party voices, or concern themselves only with news and opinion, or have become the slaves of government. They don't feel responsibility to serve their readers and the communities in which their readers live.

Can you imagine an American community without a newspaper to run pictures, editorials and news stories about the United Fund Drive, or the Boy Scout campaign, or the Heart Fund? Or a community without a newspaper to urge you to get out and vote or that shames you into cleaning up your property?

Take a new look at your own local newspaper and see how much space it devotes day in and day out, week in and week out, to making your town a better place in which to live. You may not agree with all the things the paper wants done, but you'll have to agree that the paper is not sitting back and waiting for "George to do it."

This is characteristic of big and small newspapers alike.

Take the large metropolitan newspapers, for example. Each year they win Pulitzer prizes for campaigns that have gone on quietly for a year or more, during which time they have accumulated reams of legal evidence and photostats and other material needed to prove some fraud against the people, or that some public servant has been stealing public funds, or misusing his public trust.

Nationally, regionally and in the various states each year newspaper associations offer prizes to their members for the best community public service. This is the most valued prize any newspaper wins. This is the one award each year a newspaper works hardest to earn.

When a newspaper does win an award for community public service, the real beneficiary is the community and the people who live there.

That's the way it should be. That's the way this "freedom to serve" works--in America.

We hear a lot about unemployment -- men looking for jobs. U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Employment Security and Bureau of Labor Statistics continuously monitor and issue monthly reports on trends in 150 major production and employment centers throughout the nation.

But we hear much less, and the government knows much less, about the opposite side of the coin -- underemployment, or jobs looking for men.

Yet an accurate knowledge of the situation in the second category would certainly seem to be linked to intelligent handling of the problem in the first category.

As long ago as 1962, a presidential commission, composed of six experts in the manpower field, emphasized the need for reliable figures on job vacancies. They would be valuable for a number of reasons., such as the retraining and relocation of displaced workers, educational counseling and business cycle analysis.

Because of opposition from the AFL-CIO, however, a $2.8 million appropriation in the Labor Department's fiscal 1966 budget to finance a major study of job vacancies has been killed by the House.

Union economists fear that job vacancy statistics might be used by "conservatives" to minimize the seriousness of unemployment and to argue that government stimulation of the economy is not needed.

Be that as it may, there are more than a few signs that a little private, personal stimulation inside the economy might not be amiss.

Steel plants in the Midwest, are reportedly scrounging the countryside for workers, not just skilled workers but beginners -- men with no skill but the ability to read the simplest instructions.

U.S. Steel, for example, says it recently interviewed 3,000 men and offered definite jobs to 1,100. Only 608 showed up for work.

Other plants report constant vacancies numbering from 400 to 600. As many as a fourth are good-paying, unskilled jobs.

The AFL-CIO maintains that curing unemployment is not just simply a matter of matching unemployed workers with available jobs, of balancing one set of figures against another.

This is true. But neither is it likely to help us if we deliberately blind our eyes to a vital aspect of the job-manpower situation in this country.

DOUBLE TAXATION ISN'T FAIR

Americans traditionally believe in fair play -- in sports, in business, in government, and especially in taxation.

Here's a tax situation that's anything but fair. A corporation pays tax on its income and then the individual stockholder is also taxed on the dividends he receives from the same corporation.

This might be understandable, though not justifiable, if the victims of the double taxation injustice were few in number. But that's not the case. Over 20 million people -- including a great many employees -- own stock in American corporations. Every one of these people whose dividend income exceeds $100 is compelled to submit to the palpably unfair double-tax.

In view of this, the National Association of Manufacturers is campaigning to abolish double taxation. As the NAM points out, termination of the injustice can easily be accomplished by allowing the corporation to deduct from its tax base earnings which are paid out in dividends. The Association has drawn attention to the many other benefits to the nation that the righting of this wrong would bring. Among other things, it would:

. Provide relief proportionate to the burden of double taxation at different income levels.

. Make American industry more competitive, tax wise, with European producers -- a very important factor today because of the intense world - wide trade rivalry.

. Largely eliminate the threat of penalty taxation to family-owned or other small corporation.

. Remove the bias against equity capital in new corporate financing, arising from the fact that interest on borrowed money is deductible but dividends are not.

. Eliminate dividend taxation as a factor in deciding whether or not a business should be incorporated.

It seems to us that all Americans who believe in fair play will want to support the drive to have Congress eliminate double taxation.

NAM President W. P. Gullander has been named by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey as a member of the Task Force for Youth Opportunity Campaign.

The task force will spearhead the nationwide drive to find summer jobs for two million American boys and girls--16 to 21 years of age who might not be able to find work this summer without help.

With Vice President Humphrey as Chairman, the task force included representatives of the U. S. Department of Commerce, Department of Labor, state and local governments, business and labor organizations.

President Johnson, in asking for national leadership support, said that the program "will be worthwhile only if it means extra-work-training opportunities, and above those which would normally be offered."

He added, "This is only one part of the broader attempt to assure full employment opportunity in America."

Speaking for NAM, Mr. Gullander urged member companies to cooperate in every way possible.

The finest quality of limited government in a Constitutional republic is that it provides not only for majority rule, but also for minority rights.

As the founders of our republic were well aware, arbitrary and unfair rule does not change in nature whether it comes from a single tyrant, an "elite" ruling class or masses and mobs. All these are equally enemies of liberty, and equal threats to the individual and his rights.

It is tragic that in our time this truth has been so far forgotten that some leading spokesmen for our minority groups are calling for the removal of all restraints on government, for setting up a unitary and supremely powerful state. Apparently they hope to either enlist a supreme and unlimited government on their side in their struggle to improve their lot or to become a minority, which with its leaders, attain "a place in the sun" and "rule the roost."

A careful study of history would soon show them that by enlisting unlimited government as an ally they have taken a viper unto their bosom. For unlimited government is the most ancient and most terrible of all the instruments of oppression. The sufferings of our minority groups in the past would be as nothing compared to the sufferings they would endure as tools and slaves of an omnipotent government.

Surely no one has a higher stake than the members of our minority groups in preserving a form of government which protects minority rights. The more powerful the minority the more certain its demise in a dictatorship. In this they should be able to find common cause with all thoughtful Americans, of whatever race or creed, who seek to preserve freedom. HLH

Soviet Ship's Crew Attempts To Incite Anti - U. S. Action As It Passes Through Panama Canal.

Panama City, Panama: -- The sun was scorching last July 16, but it was not as searing as the printed political propaganda being distributed on board a ship slowly making its way through the Canal that day.

The vessel was the Soviet freighter Odessa. On entering the "big ditch" it took on the required number of deck hands and handlers supplied by the Panama Canal Co. These are Panamanian citizens, mostly. They help guide the ships from ocean to ocean. Then they get off. But this day, on orders from the Odessa's Communist captain, they were handed bitter anti - U. S. literature which in effect, advocated insurrection against America.

The Panamians took the revolutionary propaganda -- and once off the ship turned it over to the American canal officials. This unreported development now is being investigated.

Far more important than the Soviets' efforts to disaffect Panama Canal workers is the action of these Panamians just 18 months after the deadly riots of Jan. 9 to 12 during which four Americans and 21 Panamanians were killed. The riots have been forgotten. The rancor is gone, even if the bullet holes in Canal Zone buildings are not.

The attitude of the deck hands and line handlers is reflected in virtually all Panamanian society. It certainly was there in the attitude of President Marco Robles when I talked with him in the historic old Presidencia, where the patio is home to graceful plumed egrets.

President Robles, talking in clipped, staccato bursts, reacted swiftly when I asked whether Castro's Latin underground was giving his country any trouble.

"Not here, it doesn't" he snapped." I won't give them an inch. They just can't get started."

He was not just making tough talk for a visiting newsman. He simply was saying that his administration was a law and order government. Some demonstrations are expected. But the left wing unions and students must be orderly. If they start rioting they will be pushed right back into line.

An hour before seeing President Robles, I had talked with Foreign Minister Fernando Eleta. The latter revealed that Panama was planning to order all of its ships (which make up the world's 11th largest merchant fleet) to end all runs to North Vietnamese ports.

President Robles confirmed this. He disclosed that Panama was studying means of slashing the trade with the enemy of the United States.

The Panamanian fleet already has been ordered not to go into Cuban waters.

President Robles and other government leaders indicated that thus Panama would lose millions of dollars, but it did not matter.

"We'll prosper because we now have a stable government," one cabinet member said. "Tell your country's businessmen that we welcome U.S. investments and go see for yourself that our unions are free to function, but they are responsible organizations."

It is all true. Panama is just beginning to prosper. This is becoming the Switzerland of the Western Hemisphere. Bank buildings are changing the skyline as swiftly as stage hands change a theatrical set. The biggest of U.S. banks in and foreign financial houses are racing across from Europe.

But no reporter would be worth his typewriter if he did not drive from this Pacific side to Colon over on the Atlantic -- where some of the continent's worst slums exist.

There the deck hands, the longshoremen, the line handlers live -- if you can call it that. They pay $40 and $50 for a one-room "apartment." Families of seven and eight live in such tiny quarters. There is virtually no light at night -- just a single electric bulb hanging from the center of the ceiling. There are no sanitary facilities as we know them. There is no kitchen. The women cook on small kerosene stoves or over gadgets feeding on butane gas -- out on the tiny balconies so characteristic of the small two - story wooden shacks built 50 and 60 years ago.

Note, please, that these are Panamanians who work for the Canal authority. They deserve better not only because they work for "us" but because they fall into a type of global fauna called humanity.

There is land available for a housing development just four or five miles from the docks in the zone. There are architectual plans drawn for a housing project. It could not provide homes for all of the 1800 waterfront employes. But it would be a good start. They have heard that American unions have funds for such projects. All that's needed for this one is a $3 million guaranteed loan. Yet they hear from no one -- neither banks nor unions.

They do not denounce either their government or ours. They reject the underground Castroite network which is able to work itself into that Atlantic Coast city from time to time until it is exposed -- often by the workers themselves.

They are not ashamed of their homes. They do not hesitate to invite the visitor in. They are ashamed of the world for passing them by.

They are like the workers with whom we sat in the Cafe Coca Cola on Santa Ana Plaza in Panama City. Within sight were the jobless in the square who haave not yet been touched by the spreading prosperity.

But no one in the cafe, vortex of militant politics, said anything unkind to the visiting Americans.

They too wondered why the world seemed to pass them by.

This visiting American had no answer.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Quite a few people have been asking me how they can build a memorial to Adlai Stevenson. Others have been asking how they can help hasten our sometimes elusive goal of peace.

Peace is much more important than the memory of a man. But in this case peace and a memorial to Stevenson are synonymous; because Adlai's greatest ambition and his greatest goal were peace. He began working for it even before the United Nations was founded, when he went to Rome after VE day to help rebuild the floundering wreck which Mussolini had left behind.

And he kept working. From the day he was in San Francisco as a staff member of the team that organized the U.N. in 1945, until he went to London to help bolster the U.N.'s shaky finances in 1965, Stevenson kept working toward this goal.

Even when he was running for President in 1956 and when most men would have made politics their one and only goal, Adlai put peace ahead of the presidency. He proposed a ban on nuclear testing in order to stop poisoning the earth's atmosphere and as a step toward peace.

The Republicans charged he was incompetent and willing to sacrifice the nation's defense. Eisenhower and Nixon kicked him on the shins verbally. His fellow Democrats urged him privately to change his tune. But he stuck to his goal.

Adlai lost the election, but he achieved his goal. Seven years later the world did sign a nuclear test ban pact. It remains one of the few immovable milestones along the sometimes scarcely discernible path to peace as it winds through the jungles of man's greed and the quicksands of cut-throat diplomacy.

Having known Adlai fairly well, I believe he would not have enthused over a monument in bronze or stone. I believe he would have much preferred a tribute which would further what he had worked for.

The last project of his life, the project which took him to London where he died, was to end the bankruptcy of the United Nations.

--PAY U.N. DEBT--

Therefore, I propose as a memorial and monument to Adlai Stevenson that the American people contribute to a "Stevenson U. N. Fund" to rescue our most important machinery for peace from the deadlock and doldrums which paralyzed it all during 1965.

You may say that the plight of the U. N. results only from the fiscal boycott of two former allies, now cities, France and Russia. This is true. But more important than arguing the merits of the U. N.'s predicament is getting it out of the predicament. Accomplishment is far more vital than argument. Furthermore the very same countries which now withhold their cash from U.N. coffers would doubtless be delighted to contribute cash to a fund in memory of a man who worked for their people as well as his own in trying to achieve peace.

This is an era when people are tired of giving money, when appeal after appeal reaches them in the mail. However, it is better to part with money now than lives later.

I also know that it will take a lot of money to make a dent in the U. S. debt. However, many pennies contributed by the children of France built the Statue of Liberty, and many small packages of food sent the friendship train to Europe with $40 million worth of nourishment in the bleak winter of 1947.

Right now, this week, a man who had nothing to do with the bankruptcy of the U.N.--Arthur Goldberg -- is struggling with this problem. I suggest we make his work easier by sending a contribution to "The Stevenson U. N. Memorial Fund," care of Arthur Goldberg, the United Nations, New York. Little people can contribute; big people can contribute; Americans, Frenchmen, Russians; Foundations and Governments.

The important thing is to get the U. N., the machinery for peace which Stevenson fought for and which we must preserve, back on the track.

--- JAVITS TRIES AGAIN ---

Sen. Jack Javits, R-N.Y., has introduced a bill once again to reimburse the city of New York for the $3 million it spent in 1960 to protect Nikita Khrushchev, President Tito of Yugoslavia, Premier Gomulka of Poland and Premier Kadar of Hungary et al, when they came to the United Nations.

The reason this perennial proposal by Javits hasn't passed the Senate previously is because the Senators are all too aware of the fact that the demonstrations organized against the visiting Communist leaders were directed and financed by Central Intelligence. And if anybody should pay the New York Police Bill it is the CIA, which has a secret fund unaccountable to the taxpayers and the Congress.

In fact, the CIA and the FBI are the only agencies of government that enjoy immunity from congressional scrutiny in the expenditure of their funds.

This is why the CIA was able to go out to Cleveland, Detroit, Buffalo, and Milwaukee to recruit ex-Urainians, ex-Poles, ex-Hungarians, and bring them to New York, where their expenses were paid to picket and heckle Khrushchev, Tito, Kadar and the others. Central Intelligence did not even do a good job of directing crowds, because when Cyrus Eaton, who was trying to build bridges, across the Iron Curtain, gave a luncheon for Premier Kadar of Hungary, the crowds were shouting, "Down With Tito."

CIA agents at least ought to get their Communist leaders straight.

The United States' weakness in the conduct of foreign affairs was never more glaringly apparent than in its abrupt backdown to Russia and other defaulters in the United Nations.

Other countries have come to rely on the United States to pick up the check for any and all things requiring money. This includes both friend and foe. These countries, having been subsidized by the United States, owe this nation no loyalty and they give us a bad time at every opportunity.

How the United States can ever escape the role of Uncle Santa Claus is obscure. It should find the way but after the passage of many years it is just as far from the goal as when it financed World War I.

Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg has lifted the paralysis of the United Nations general assembly and restored normal relations by abandoning a showdown with Russia and other defaulting nations over unpaid U. N. peace-keeping assessments. But the price is too high both for the U. N. and for the United States.

This represents a United States' retreat and a defeat of the first magnitude but it saved the United Nations from immediate collapse and substituted slow strangulation.

It's no surprise that a majority of UN members were not prepared to enforce the U. N.charter provision providing the loss of vote in the assembly for any member falling two years behind in paying assessments. Russia, France and 11 other countries are in this category.

It's not surprising that a majority of U. N. diplomats are indifferent about enforcing the charter. It's so convenient, so easy and so customary to let Uncle Santa Claus pick up the tab.

Russia owes $62 million.

Failure to enforce the charter establishes a precedent by which financial support of U. N. activities can be withheld for political reasons. It will encourage the crippling of the world organization's peace keeping machinery.

It also will encourage other nations to rely on the United States to pay their share of any collective costs incurred in any project about which they have limited enthusiasm or to which they are opposed.

The United States was on firm ground in demanding that the defaulting nations pay up

The International Court of Justice at The Hague has ruled that all U. N. members were legally obligated to pay expenses of the peace-keeping forces in the Congo and the Middle East.

The late Adlai Stevenson, Goldberg's predecessor ambassador to the U. N., set down the nation's original position on the issue in these words:

"Rigid adherence to the law, to the charter, is essential to the charter's preservation. Once you begin to contaminate or erode or interpret the charter too flexibly, you very soon will have no sustaining body of legal structure to support the United Nations."

How true!

Less than two weeks ago, U. N. fledgling Goldberg described as "not accurate" a Washington Star story to the effect that the United States would abandon the fight to make the Soviet Union pay its dues.

The welchers are delighted. We are incensed. The U. N. is in jeopardy. Once more other nations have made a monkey out of the United States. And Goldberg is off to a bumbling start as this nation's top man in the U. N.

One of the truly great freedoms that made this nation strong is one you don't hear much about. It's the "freedom to serve" in a community, according to the national Newspaper Public Information Committee which has released the following statement:

From the hard pioneer days to the present, free people have developed a tradition of helping one another on a voluntary basis. They like the warmth that comes from being personally involved instead of sitting back and saying, "Let the government do it. I pay my taxes."

Just as the schoolhouse is the symbol of America's tradition of a free public education for all and the courthouse the symbol of the right to a fair trial for all, so the newspaper office, either in the smallest country town or the largest metropolitan city, is the symbol of this "freedom to serve."

A stranger going into any community in the nation will find all newspaper editors and publishers alike in one major respect. They all take tremendous pride in their communites.

The first thing they want to do is show you the town.

They will point out the new library, the well-lighted streets, or the shining new hospital they editorialized about for so many years before they got it.

Pick up any newspaper in America, any day of the week, and somewhere in that paper you'll find an editorial, a column, a feature story, a picture or a news story plugging for something for the town or city.

Or plugging for the young people, or the old people, or the neglected or forgotten.

Public service by newspapers is now an institution in America.

There's nothing else like it in the whole world because nowhere else in the world do newspapers take to heart this "freedom to serve" and nowhere else do they practice daily and weekly their role of community public service.

In most nations newspapers are political party voices, or concern themselves only with news and opinion, or have become the slaves of government. They don't feel responsibility to serve their readers and the communities in which their readers live.

Can you imagine an American community without a newspaper to run pictures, editorials and news stories about the United Fund Drive, or the Boy Scout campaign, or the Heart Fund? Or a community without a newspaper to urge you to get out and vote or that shames you into cleaning up your property?

Take a new look at your own local newspaper and see how much space it devotes day in and day out, week in and week out, to making your town a better place in which to live. You may not agree with all the things the paper wants done, but you'll have to agree that the paper is not sitting back and waiting for "George to do it."

This is characteristic of big and small newspapers alike.

Take the large metropolitan newspapers, for example. Each year they win Pulitzer prizes for campaigns that have gone on quietly for a year or more, during which time they have accumulated reams of legal evidence and photostats and other material needed to prove some fraud against the people, or that some public servant has been stealing public funds, or misusing his public trust.

Nationally, regionally and in the various states each year newspaper associations offer prizes to their members for the best community public service. This is the most valued prize any newspaper wins. This is the one award each year a newspaper works hardest to earn.

When a newspaper does win an award for community public service, the real beneficiary is the community and the people who live there.

That's the way it should be. That's the way this "freedom to serve" works--in America.

We hear a lot about unemployment -- men looking for jobs. U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Employment Security and Bureau of Labor Statistics continuously monitor and issue monthly reports on trends in 150 major production and employment centers throughout the nation.

But we hear much less, and the government knows much less, about the opposite side of the coin -- underemployment, or jobs looking for men.

Yet an accurate knowledge of the situation in the second category would certainly seem to be linked to intelligent handling of the problem in the first category.

As long ago as 1962, a presidential commission, composed of six experts in the manpower field, emphasized the need for reliable figures on job vacancies. They would be valuable for a number of reasons., such as the retraining and relocation of displaced workers, educational counseling and business cycle analysis.

Because of opposition from the AFL-CIO, however, a $2.8 million appropriation in the Labor Department's fiscal 1966 budget to finance a major study of job vacancies has been killed by the House.

Union economists fear that job vacancy statistics might be used by "conservatives" to minimize the seriousness of unemployment and to argue that government stimulation of the economy is not needed.

Be that as it may, there are more than a few signs that a little private, personal stimulation inside the economy might not be amiss.

Steel plants in the Midwest, are reportedly scrounging the countryside for workers, not just skilled workers but beginners -- men with no skill but the ability to read the simplest instructions.

U.S. Steel, for example, says it recently interviewed 3,000 men and offered definite jobs to 1,100. Only 608 showed up for work.

Other plants report constant vacancies numbering from 400 to 600. As many as a fourth are good-paying, unskilled jobs.

The AFL-CIO maintains that curing unemployment is not just simply a matter of matching unemployed workers with available jobs, of balancing one set of figures against another.

This is true. But neither is it likely to help us if we deliberately blind our eyes to a vital aspect of the job-manpower situation in this country.

DOUBLE TAXATION ISN'T FAIR

Americans traditionally believe in fair play -- in sports, in business, in government, and especially in taxation.

Here's a tax situation that's anything but fair. A corporation pays tax on its income and then the individual stockholder is also taxed on the dividends he receives from the same corporation.

This might be understandable, though not justifiable, if the victims of the double taxation injustice were few in number. But that's not the case. Over 20 million people -- including a great many employees -- own stock in American corporations. Every one of these people whose dividend income exceeds $100 is compelled to submit to the palpably unfair double-tax.

In view of this, the National Association of Manufacturers is campaigning to abolish double taxation. As the NAM points out, termination of the injustice can easily be accomplished by allowing the corporation to deduct from its tax base earnings which are paid out in dividends. The Association has drawn attention to the many other benefits to the nation that the righting of this wrong would bring. Among other things, it would:

. Provide relief proportionate to the burden of double taxation at different income levels.

. Make American industry more competitive, tax wise, with European producers -- a very important factor today because of the intense world - wide trade rivalry.

. Largely eliminate the threat of penalty taxation to family-owned or other small corporation.

. Remove the bias against equity capital in new corporate financing, arising from the fact that interest on borrowed money is deductible but dividends are not.

. Eliminate dividend taxation as a factor in deciding whether or not a business should be incorporated.

It seems to us that all Americans who believe in fair play will want to support the drive to have Congress eliminate double taxation.

However, many pennies contributed by the children of France built the Statue of Liberty, and many small packages of food sent the friendship train to Europe with $40 million worth of nourishment in the bleak winter of 1947.

Right now, this week, a man who had nothing to do with the bankruptcy of the U.N.--Arthur Goldberg -- is struggling with this problem. I suggest we make his work easier by sending a contribution to "The Stevenson U.N. Memorial Fund," care of Arthur Goldberg, the United Nations, New York. Little people can contribute; big people can contribute; Americans, Frenchmen, Russians; Foundations and Governments.

The important thing is to get the U. N., the machinery for peace which Stevenson fought for and which we must preserve, back on the track.

--- JAVITS TRIES AGAIN ---

Sen. Jack Javits, R-N.Y., has introduced a bill once again to reimburse the city of New York for the $3 million it spent in 1960 to protect Nikita Khrushchev, President Tito of Yugoslavia, Premier Gomulka of Poland and Premier Kadar of Hungary et al, when they came to the United Nations.

The reason this perennial proposal by Javits hasn't passed the Senate previously is because the Senators are all too aware of the fact that the demonstrations organized against the visiting Communist leaders were directed and financed by Central Intelligence. And if anybody should pay the New York Police Bill it is the CIA, which has a secret fund unaccountable to the taxpayers and the Congress.

In fact, the CIA and the FBI are the only agencies of government that enjoy immunity from congressional scrutiny in the expenditure of their funds.

This is why the CIA was able to go out to Cleveland, Detroit, Buffalo, and Milwaukee to recruit ex-Urainians, ex-Poles, ex-Hungarians, and bring them to New York, where their expenses were paid to picket and heckle Khrushchev, Tito, Kadar and the others. Central Intelligence did not even do a good job of directing crowds, because when Cyrus Eaton, who was trying to build bridges, across the Iron Curtain, gave a luncheon for Premier Kadar of Hungary, the crowds were shouting, "Down With Tito."

CIA agents at least ought to get their Communist leaders straight.

Soviet Ship's Crew Attempts To Incite Anti - U. S. Action As It Passes Through Panama Canal.

Panama City, Panama: -- The sun was scorching last July 16, but it was not as searing as the printed political propaganda being distributed on board a ship slowly making its way through the Canal that day.

The vessel was the Soviet freighter Odessa. On entering the "big ditch" it took on the required number of deck hands and handlers supplied by the Panama Canal Co. These are Panamanian citizens, mostly. They help guide the ships from ocean to ocean. Then they get off. But this day, on orders from the Odessa's Communist captain, they were handed bitter anti - U. S. literature which in effect, advocated insurrection against America.

The Panamians took the revolutionary propaganda -- and once off the ship turned it over to the American canal officials. This unreported development now is being investigated.

Far more important than the Soviets' efforts to disaffect Panama Canal workers is the action of these Panamians just 18 months after the deadly riots of Jan. 9 to 12 during which four Americans and 21 Panamanians were killed. The riots have been forgotten. The rancor is gone, even if the bullet holes in Canal Zone buildings are not.

The attitude of the deck hands and line handlers is reflected in virtually all Panamanian society. It certainly was there in the attitude of President Marco Robles when I talked with him in the historic old Presidencia, where the patio is home to graceful plumed egrets.

President Robles, talking in clipped, staccato bursts, reacted swiftly when I asked whether Castro's Latin underground was giving his country any trouble.

"Not here, it doesn't" he snapped." I won't give them an inch. They just can't get started."

He was not just making tough talk for a visiting newsman. He simply was saying that his administration was a law and order government. Some demonstrations are expected. But the left wing unions and students must be orderly. If they start rioting they will be pushed right back into line.

An hour before seeing President Robles, I had talked with Foreign Minister Fernando Eleta. The latter revealed that Panama was planning to order all of its ships (which make up the world's 11th largest merchant fleet) to end all runs to North Vietnamese ports.

President Robles confirmed this. He disclosed that Panama was studying means of slashing the trade with the enemy of the United States.

The Panamanian fleet already has been ordered not to go into Cuban waters.

President Robles and other government leaders indicated that thus Panama would lose millions of dollars, but it did not matter.

"We'll prosper because we now have a stable government," one cabinet member said. "Tell your country's businessmen that we welcome U.S. investments and go see for yourself that our unions are free to function, but they are responsible organizations."

It is all true. Panama is just beginning to prosper. This is becoming the Switzerland of the Western Hemisphere. Bank buildings are changing the skyline as swiftly as stage hands change a theatrical set. The biggest of U.S. banks in and foreign financial houses are racing across from Europe.

But no reporter would be worth his typewriter if he did not drive from this Pacific side to Colon over on the Atlantic -- where some of the continent's worst slums exist.

There the deck hands, the longshoremen, the line handlers live -- if you can call it that. They pay $40 and $50 for a one-room "apartment." Families of seven and eight live in such tiny quarters. There is virtually no light at night -- just a single electric bulb hanging from the center of the ceiling. There are no sanitary facilities as we know them. There is no kitchen. The women cook on small kerosene stoves or over gadgets feeding on butane gas -- out on the tiny balconies so characteristic of the small two - story wooden shacks built 50 and 60 years ago.

Note, please, that these are Panamanians who work for the Canal authority. They deserve better not only because they work for "us" but because they fall into a type of global fauna called humanity.

There is land available for a housing development just four or five miles from the docks in the zone. There are architectual plans drawn for a housing project. It could not provide homes for all of the 1800 waterfront employes. But it would be a good start. They have heard that American unions have funds for such projects. All that's needed for this one is a $3 million guaranteed loan. Yet they hear from no one -- neither banks nor unions.

They do not denounce either their government or ours. They reject the underground Castro-ite network which is able to work itself into that Atlantic Coast city from time to time until it is exposed -- often by the workers themselves.

They are not ashamed of their homes. They do not hesitate to invite the visitor in. They are ashamed of the world for passing them by.

They are like the workers with whom we sat in the Cafe Coca Cola on Santa Ana Plaza in Panama City. Within sight were the jobless in the square who haave not yet been touched by the spreading prosperity.

But no one in the cafe, vortex of militant politics, said anything unkind to the visiting Americans.

They too wondered why the world seemed to pass them by.

This visiting American had no answer.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alan Hamby

Hammock-Hamby Wedding Vows Exchanged In Ceremony

In a beautiful and impressive summer wedding, Miss Doris Faye Hammock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Hammock, pledged her nuptials vows to Robert Alan Hamby, son of Mrs. Grace Hamby and the late Jess Hamby.

The Reverend A. E. Ray read the vows of the double ring ceremony at seven o'clock in the evening July thirty-first at Temple Baptist Church.

Four seven-branch candelabra holding lighted blue and white tapers and standards of blue and white gladioli decorated the altar of the church. Large white satin bows with long streamers marked the pews.

Mrs. Lois Krauss, pianist, rendered the pre-nuptial music and accompanied Tim Cloin as he sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by Bill Cloin, a close family friend, wore a street-length dress of white satin overlaid with white lace. The dress was styled with long tapered sleeves and a scoop neckline. The satin A-line skirt was also overlaid with lace. Her headpiece was a crown of pearls encircled with a shoulder-length veil of white silk illusion. The bride carried a white Bible topped with an arrangement of white carnations and white satin streamers tied in lovers' knots flowed from the bouquet. The former Miss Hammock's only jewelry was a single strand of pearls.

Mrs. Joe Hill of St. Louis, sister of the groom, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Charlene Hammock, Miss Bonnie Hammock, sisters of the bride, and Miss Pat Hamby, sister of the groom.

Miss Della Hammock, sister of the bride, and Miss Jackie Sisk, a close friend of the bride, served as candlelighters.

The attendants were attired in powder blue linen dresses. The frocks were created with short sleeves, scoop necklines and A-line skirts. The bottom of the skirts were trimmed in blue lace. Their veils of blue illusion were attached to crowns of pearls. White accessories, white gladioli and strands of pearls, gifts from the bride, complemented the attendants' ensembles.

Flower girl was Miss Laurinda Hammock, sister of the bride. She wore a blue polished cotton dress featuring a bouffant skirt. Her headdress was a pearl crown holding a veil of silk illusion. She carried a basket of white carnation petals.

Wayne Hatley, a close friend of the couple, was best man. The bridegroom's brother-in-law, Joe Hill of St. Louis, served as groomsman. Mike Hamby, brother of the groom, was usher and Jesse Hammock, brother of the bride, carried the rings on a blue satin pillow. The men in the wedding party wore dark trousers, white jackets and white carnation boutonnieres.

Mrs. Hammock chose for her daughter's wedding a powder blue crepe dress which she complemented with white accessories. Mrs. Hamby wore a navy blue crepe dress with dark blue accessories. Both mothers wore white carnation corsages.

A reception followed in the recreation hall of the church. The bride's table was covered in blue and overlaid with a white lace table cloth. A three tiered wedding cake topped with the traditional miniature bride and groom. Blue tapers and crystal dishes, holding nuts and mints, appointed the table. An arrangement of blue and white flowers stood at each end of the table. Mrs. A. E. Ray and Mrs. Herman Ray served at the reception.

Miss Mary Davis presided at the guest register.

After the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Hamby left for a wedding trip to Illinois. The new bride wore a two piece yellow suit with white accessories.

The newly wed couple is now at 521 Sikes. Mrs. Hamby is employed at the El Capri Restaurant. Mr Hamby is associated with Hamby's Pest Control.

MISS JALONDA BIRD, ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Bird of Kewanee placed with a blue ribbon and a high score in representing New Madrid County 4-H in the district dress revue in Cape Girardeau.

WHAT DID A JET RIDE COST 20 YEARS AGO?
A strange question. You couldn't buy a jet ticket at any price 20 years ago.
But the same logic applies to saying, "Prescriptions cost more than they used to." Most of today's drugs weren't available — at any price — 20 years ago. In fact, over three quarters of all prescriptions written today are for drugs less than ten years old.
Today, Americans spend only one cent from every disposable dollar on drugs. This share is no more than we spent in 1930! Also, today's drugs work faster. They are more efficient. They do much to reduce your total cost of illness. That's why we say: "Today's prescription is the biggest bargain in history."

WHAT DID A JET RIDE COST 20 YEARS AGO?

A strange question. You couldn't buy a jet ticket at any price 20 years ago.

But the same logic applies to saying, "Prescriptions cost more than they used to." Most of today's drugs weren't available — at any price — 20 years ago. In fact, over three quarters of all prescriptions written today are for drugs less than ten years old.

Today, Americans spend only one cent from every disposable dollar on drugs. This share is no more than we spent in 1930! Also, today's drugs work faster. They are more efficient. They do much to reduce your total cost of illness. That's why we say: "Today's prescription is the biggest bargain in history."

Umpire Decisions Rouse Braves, Cards Grounded 5-3

There were home run size arguments over home runs Wednesday night as the barreling Milwaukee Braves took a 5-3 ballgame from the Cardinals in St. Louis.

It was the sixth straight victory for the Braves but it was played under protest from the eighth inning on when Umpire Chris Pelekoudas called Hank Aaron out after Aaron apparently hit a home run. Pelekoudas ruled that Aaron stepped out of the front of the batters box to hit a slow pitch thrown by Redbird pitcher Curt Simmons.

In the melee that followed, Brave Manager Bobby Bragan was thrown out of the game.

Meanwhile Kansas City won the opening game of a twi-night doubleheader in Cleveland, 4-2, but the Indians used three home runs in the first two innings to take the second contest, 4-1.

The Athletic's lone run in the second game came in the third when Jose Tartabull singled in Tom Reynolds who had doubled.

Tartabull was the leader as he doubled, had three singles and scored the run that put Kansas City ahead in the first game.

Tartabull broke a 2-2 deadlock in the seventh when he scored on an infield out. He doubled in Bert Campaneris in the eighth.

Kansas City is idle today.

"Bragan's protest was strictly on judgment," said Umpire Pelekoudas. "His only argument at the time was something about a grudge and that is stupid. I didn't hesitate in making the call. I've called about a half dozen batters out for leaving the batters box in the majors--most of the time it happens on a bunt."

"You don't see a call like that in a life time," Bragan said. "The umpires excuse it 99 per cent of the time."

Aaron, who had popped out his previous time at bat, said: "I did the same thing the time before and popped up and he didn't say a word. I always hit at Simmons that way."

There was no doubt that Aaron did step out to hit the changeup.

That argument wasn't the last of the discussions over home run balls. The next one came in the ninth when Milwaukee pinch hitter Don Dillard smashed a two-run homer to win the game for the Braves.

Umpire Bill Jackowski ruled the ball went into the stands and was touched by a fan, rebounding onto the field.

Redbird outfield Curt Flood didn't see it that way.

"It hit the top of the wall," Flood said. "It came down and bounced crazy."

Possibly with cooler tempers, the Braves and Cardinals play each other again today. Ray Sadecki 2-11 will throw for St. Louis and Ken Johnson 13-6 will pitch for the Braves.

Semo Senior Golf Association Holds Second Tourney

The SEMO Senior's Golf Association with J. F. Cox, Jr. as President and C. Clarence Scott, Sec.-Treas, is sponsoring it's Second Annual Golf Tournament Saturday and Sunday, August 21 and 22 at the Sikeston Country Club.

Forty-eight of 55 golfers ranging in age from 50 to over 70 and from 10 Southeast Missouri cities will participate.

A cocktail hour at 6 p.m. will be held Saturday night sponsored by senior members of the Cape Girardeau and Sikeston Country Clubs. A business meeting will follow with the election of officers for ensuing year, and to accept invitations for the 1966 tournament.

The Sikeston Country Club course is not closed during this tournament, but the Senior Golfers are extended preference during tee off time from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. each day. Several will take advantage of free practice on Friday, August 20.

There will be 23 prizes of trophies and merchandise awarded, with value of about $500.

Spain Completes 3-0 Rout In Interzone Finals

BARCELONA, Spain AP -- Spain is headed for its first challenge round and the United States is back to mending fences in the Davis Cup tennis competition.

The Spanish, led by the spectacular Manuel Santana, completed a 3-0 shutout of the Americans in the interzone final by winning the doubles here Wednesday. Now they play India probably in India - for the right to take on Australia in December.

The Yanks will be denied their summer Christmas in Sydney. For the third time in five years, they have been stopped short of the challenge round.

Questions come to the front again.

What's the future of Dennis Ralston, the No. 1 player from Bakersfield, Calif., who proved such a disappointment?

Must the Davis Cup preparations and team training be revised, suggested by losing Capt. George MacCall of Los Angeles?

Where is the new talent coming from?

Ralston has failed to come through in the big match on repeated occasions - as in his opening day loss here to rookie Juan Gisbert - and, as a result, may lose his No. 1 position on the team unless he can whip the opening day nerves that seem to plague him.

The hot-tempered youngster may save the U. S. brass the trouble of such a decision by deciding to give the whole thing away.

He has told friends privately that tennis can become a tedious grind and he might retire - as his pal, Chuck McKinley did recently - and play only scattered tournaments.

The final match of the interzone series between Dennis and Antana may affect that decision. The two top players of their respective teams clash after Frank Froehling III of Coral Gables, Fla., and Juan Gisbert meet in the first of two closings singles matches that now mean nothing.

Spain clinched the interzone tie when Santana and Jose Luis Arilla rallied from two sets down and a 1-4 and 2-5 deficit in the final set for a three-hour voctory over Ralston and Clark Graebner of Cleveland Ohio, Wednesday, 4-6, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 11-9.

All-Stars Romp Morley 21-5 Chaffee Clips Charleston 11-7

The Sikeston All-Stars battled the first of their series of games in their own Annual Little League Tournament last night at Farris Field and downed Morley with a 21-5 score. The Stars were swinging the bats as they collected nine safeties and held their opponents to only two.

Sikeston's hurler, McConnell allowed only one batter to connect with Morley's two hits. That batter was shortstop Holt.

Sikeston fell in order in the first inning but in the second crossed the plate three times on three hits. However, Morley did the same but only on one hit. In the third, Morley gained the lead in holding the Stars to nothing and themselves tripping in one run. That brought the score to 4-3, Morley ahead. In a Sikeston comeback in the fourth, the lead switched from a Morley 4-3 lead to a Sikeston 11-4. The next frame saw Sikeston add three more runs to the scoreboard and Morley chalk another up. The last frame saw Sikeston move without reach of the Morley nine as they scattered the ball for three doubles and seven scores. Morley was tripped in that frame without a score.

Abernathy was the losing pitcher giving up nine hits and 21 runs to the strong Sikeston team. McConnell added the triumph to the books.

Nelson stimulated the bats for Sikeston in walloping two doubles. Ward smashed a single and a double for two times at bat for the Stars.

The nightcap action fell to Chaffee as they hammered Charleston 11-7 in five innings. The game was called because of the time limit rule.

Chaffee, backed up by the hitting performance of Ballard, Steimle, and Thomas, carried off with their victory, 8 hits and two home runs.

The bout started with a 1-1 tie in the first frame. In that inning, Chaffee gained their lone run and hit when Thomas cut loose with a home run with no men on. Charleston gained their run when Schott was forced in home on a walk.

Inning two saw Chaffee take two more runs on Steimle's homer with Ballard on base. That brought the score to 3-1. Charleston went without a run in the third as Chaffee tagged the home plate again. Charleston pushed the score a little closer in the fourth when they tallied across two runs on no hits to bring the score to 5-3. The last frame saw both teams go tally in run after run. In that frame Chaffee pounded four hits for seven runs. Charleston, in a last inning effort gained four runs on six free tickets.

Buchanan gave up two hits to Charleston as he, with one inning relief from Thomas, took the victory. Ferrell was stranded with the defeat giving up eight hits and 11 runs.

Sikeston fell in order in the first inning but in the second crossed the plate three times on three hits. However, Morley did the same but only on one hit. In the third, Morley gained the lead in holding the Stars to nothing and themselves tripping in one run. That brought the score to 4-3, Morley ahead. In a Sikeston comeback in the fourth, the lead switched from a Morley 4-3 lead to a Sikeston 11-4. The next frame saw Sikeston add three more runs to the scoreboard and Morley chalk another up. The last frame saw Sikeston move without reach of the Morley nine as they scattered the ball for three doubles and seven scores. Morley was tripped in that frame without a score.

Abernathy was the losing pitcher giving up nine hits and 21 runs to the strong Sikeston team. McConnell added the triumph to the books.

Nelson stimulated the bats for Sikeston in walloping two doubles. Ward smashed a single and a double for two times at bat for the Stars.

The nightcap action fell to Chaffee as they hammered Charleston 11-7 in five innings. The game was called because of the time limit rule.

Chaffee, backed up by the hitting performance of Ballard, Steimle, and Thomas, carried off with their victory, 8 hits and two home runs.

The bout started with a 1-1 tie in the first frame. In that inning, Chaffee gained their lone run and hit when Thomas cut loose with a home run with no men on. Charleston gained their run when Schott was forced in home on a walk.

Inning two saw Chaffee take two more runs on Steimle's homer with Ballard on base. That brought the score to 3-1. Charleston went without a run in the third as Chaffee tagged the home plate again. Charleston pushed the score a little closer in the fourth when they tallied across two runs on no hits to bring the score to 5-3. The last frame saw both teams go tally in run after run. In that frame Chaffee pounded four hits for seven runs. Charleston, in a last inning effort gained four runs on six free tickets.

Buchanan gave up two hits to Charleston as he, with one inning relief from Thomas, took the victory. Ferrell was stranded with the defeat giving up eight hits and 11 runs.

A hoo-doo day, A hoo-doo date, I've planned to fitly celebrate. So you will find a welcome hearty, at my gay Superstition party, Friday, Aug. 13 at 8:30 p.m. The above invitation was sent out by Miss Leita Lindley. The guests upon arriving and entering the room discovered a ladder hung across the door, from which a poster extended.

Each guest was requested to whistle as they passed under to avert evil consequences. Evelyn Sutton, Honora Bailey, Katherine Jewell, Ruth McCoy, Sheria Lockhart and Clara Lindley had their heads thrust through a sheet and their hair tied above to represent the heads of Blue Beard's wives.

Miss Juanita Greer assisted in serving punch, while Miss Carrie Hess assisted Miss Lindley in telling fortunes. The following were present to enjoy the novel entertainment; Messrs. and Mesdames Sherman Harper, and Levi Cook, Messrs. Harry Blanton, Joe Matthews, Ernest Williams, Watson Swaim, D. B. and James Kevil.

Orlando Arthur, Wallace Applegate, Will Sikes, Chris Francis, Harry Dudley, Murray Klein, Herman Henry, Joe Stubbs, Otto Werner, Archie Barnett, John Matthews, Marvin McMullin, Earl J. Van Horne, Luther Felker, Paul Bowman, Arthur Barrett, Ewell Barger, and Misses Myra and Burnice Tanner, Emma Roush, Mary Henninger.

Mayme and Stella Marshall, Lill Parsons, Bess Barry, Hazel Stubbs, Myrtle York, Mary and Helen Thomas, Mary Matthews, Florence Baker, Myrtle Sheppard, Clarice and Ruth Burton, Carrie and Eva Hess, Juanita Greer, Evelyn Sutton, Honora Bailey, Katherine Jewell, Ruth McCoy, Sheria Lockhart and Clara Lindley.

John A. Matthews and son, Jack, and Walter Clymer were in St. Louis Saturday buying equipment for their new garage, which will be the most up-to-date in this section of the state. New machinery, ladies waiting room, fire proof, filtered gasoline. Cars for hire. Chevrolet cars and Indian motorcycle.

PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

Thursday, August 19, 1965

If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sister, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple. (Luke 14:26)

PRAYER: Our Father, give us faith to follow Thee closely, and the courage to build Christian homes, in a day when both are so needed. For Jesus' sake we ask these things. Amen.

U.S. Steel Hikes Capital Spending

NEW YORK - The United States Steel Corp. has announced a doubling of capital spending plans - to $1.8 billion over the next three years.

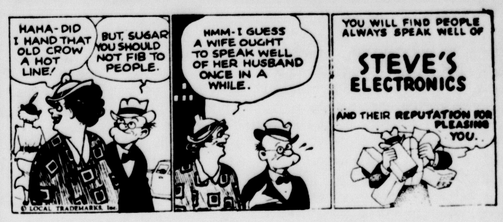

The company, the nation's largest steel producer, also announced Tuesday a major capital reorganization.

The reorganization plan calls for moving the company's charter from New Jersey to Delaware and involves the conversion of preferred stock into debentures, which are a debt of the company and represent no ownership or equity.

Tokyo's name means "eastern capital."

PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

Thursday, August 19, 1965

If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sister, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple. (Luke 14:26)

PRAYER: Our Father, give us faith to follow Thee closely, and the courage to build Christian homes, in a day when both are so needed. For Jesus' sake we ask these things. Amen.

U.S. Steel Hikes Capital Spending

NEW YORK - The United States Steel Corp. has announced a doubling of capital spending plans - to $1.8 billion over the next three years.

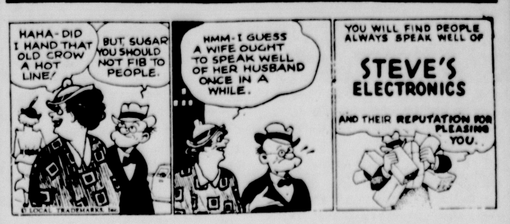

The company, the nation's largest steel producer, also announced Tuesday a major capital reorganization.

The reorganization plan calls for moving the company's charter from New Jersey to Delaware and involves the conversion of preferred stock into debentures, which are a debt of the company and represent no ownership or equity.

Tokyo's name means "eastern capital."

Foreign Aid Decision Victory For Johnson

WASHINGTON -- Not this year but maybe next year, or the next year, or the next, will bring some kind of overhaul in foreign aid which has cost the government $111 billion in the past 20 years.

But the program in some form seems destined to go on indefinitely. Congress is about to authorize spending $3.36 billion more on it for another year.

As it turns out, this is another pretty good victory for President Johnson.

Earlier this year in an interview David E. Bell, head of the Agency for International Development, which handles foreign aid, was asked if he could foresee the day when it would come to an end.

He said: Yes, certainly. But he didn't say when. He pointed out that various programs of aid to European countries have come to an orderly finish. He expects the same to happen elsewhere, he said.

This year there was the usual irritation and agitation about foreign aid in Congress, which traditionally has approved continuing it but on a year-by-year basis.

One of the most discontented was also one of the most powerful men in the Senate, J. W. Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat and chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Military and economic assistance have always been lumped together, requiring Congress to approve them in a single parcel. Fulbright wanted them separated. The Senate wouldn't buy the idea. Neither would the House.

Fulbright called this lumping together "a garbage can. . . and conglomeration" of all sorts of amendments which have nothing to do with foreign aid. He asked: How could any senator know what he was voting for or against?

But his opposite number had some things to say, setting his teeth against any major changes. In the end he won. This was Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, Pennsylvania Democrat and chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

He said foreign aid is "not a miracle vaccine that will make every country in the world immune to communism. But it is vital to our security" and it has "enable us to win important battles."

The Senate, but not the House, did buy an idea of Sen. Wayne Morse, Oregon Democrat: Instead of continuing aid on a yearly basis, end it in two years to force President Johnson to revamp it. Then, revised, it could continue.

Since there were differences in what the House and Senate authorized, they had to set up a committee to reach a compromise. They met 14 times over two months and finally came to agreement Tuesday because the Senate backed down.

The Senate proposal to end the program in two years was dropped. Instead, the conferees agreed on suggesting a committee be created to think up some new approaches on foreign aid.

The House agreed that next year, when the program comes up again, Congress may consider extending it for "two or more years" at a time. That's about as vague as an agreement can be.

Considering the way Congress had slashed other presidents' aid programs, it treated Johnson very well.

He had asked $3.38 billion, plub $89 million to finance the start of an economic and social program in Southeast Asia. The conference committee's agreement to let him have $3.36 billion included the $89 million.

It's usually routine for both houses to approve what their compromise committees agree on. House and Senate are expected to do that in this case quickly.

Still Talk About Hawaii Mutiny

HONOLULU AP -- Out here they're still talking about the "Hawaii" mutiny.

Some islanders believe this one puts other mutinies to shame. The Bounty? A trifling affair -- and who needed all those breadfruit trees, anyway? The Caine? Much ado about some stolen strawberries.

Now the mutiny on "Hawaii" was another matter entirely. There was no Bligh, no Queeg. It was simply a clash between high - powered corporative thinking and the gentle spirit of Polynesia. The pawn: an investment of 10 to 20 million dollars.

Here is the picture of the mutiny I drew from the survivors:

After filming in Norway, New England and Hollywood, the "Hawaii" company came to Oahu with high hopes and budget to match. Back at the office, the movie's backers watched the budget climb higher and higher. Finished film was returning to Hollywood at a sluggish rate.

United Artists and Mirisch Brothers brass arrived at the classic solution for such affairs; fire the director.

George Roy Hill was being sacked, said the bosses. Arthur Hiller, who was waiting in the plus bullpen of a Waikiki hotel, was to replace him.

What had gone wrong?

Said star Max Von Sydow: "There were three problems--we ran into a lot of rain; working on the sailing ships consumed a lot of time; and the number of unprofessional actors required time and patience on George's part."

"There was never a question about the quality of the film," added Julie Andrews. "When the trouble arose, we asked to see what had been shot, and we found it excellent."

But the corporative minds saw the tab pushing from $10 million to $12 million and perhaps beyond. They decided Hill must go.

They reckoned without the simple loyalty of the Polynesian.

An imposing figure among the amateur actors recruited for "Hawaii" is Jocelyn Lagarde, a 300-pound Tahitian who was signed to play the Hawaiian Queen Malama. She knew no English before the film, and Hill had directed her with infinite care.

When she heard the director was fired, she issued the edict: no Hill, no Malama. She would sail home to Tahiti.

Manu Taunaole, a Fijian who portrays her son in the film, agreed that he would quit the movie if Hill was canned. Hawaiian extras also threatened to balk, and the casting workers who hired them resigned their jobs.

Now the bosses were caught in the middle. Reshooting with a new native cast might shoot the budget up to $20 million. They acquiesced. Hill was rehired, and Hiller flew back to the mainland.

When Hill reported to the set the day afterward, he was greeted with applause and kisses from his loyal cast. Last Sunday the natives tendered him a luau.

Arid Conception Of Texas Is False

DALLAS, Tex. AP -- Easterners who are suffering through their fourth straight summer of drought may think they're living under a Texas-type hardship. But the popular conception of Texas as an arid region is false.

Texas as a whole has more than it can use. The eastern portion of the state, for example, gets more than 50 inches of rainfall a year. The average rainfall at Beaumont, near Houston, is 55 inches per year. Houston averages 45 inches, Dallas 35 and San Antonio 28.

Almost 800 miles to the west, though, around El Paso, the fall is less than 10 inches annually.

Therein lies the Texas water problem.

Texas has had its share of droughts. The state was hit especially hard by the seven-year drought of the 1950s. It was then that bottled water sold in Dallas for 50 cents a gallon, or seven times the cost of oil, long a basic pillar of Texas economy.

Texans tried everything from thousands of dollars paid to rainmakers to less expensive prayers.

By the time drought-breaking torrents fell in the spring in 1957, intensified water development began. Texas found it had plenty of water, but was not using it properly.

Plans were drawn for scores of large dam-reservoir projects, many to cost over $50 million, to keep river water in Texas instead of letting it run off into the Gulf of Mexico.

There are today 138 major dams built or under construction in the state, with the 44 largest reservoirs having a collective surface area when full of 2,300 square miles, almost twice the area of Rhode Island.

Texas has so much water that 40 million acre-feet meander through its rivers to the Gulf every year. There are more than 7,500 named streams, rivers and tributaries in the state, flowing in 80,000 miles of channel. An acre-foot is 325,851 gallons.

Water experts believe that huge dams alone will not solve the water problem. They say that transbasin diversion--transfer of water by canal or pipeline from one river basin to another--is needed.

Diversion is especially crucial in Texas because of the disparity in annual rainfall across the state. The Texas Water Commission says yearly rainfall decreases about one inch for every 17 miles from east to west.

The most dramatic diversion proposal is for a 419-mile canal from the Sabine River on the Texas-Louisiana border to the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation estimates that the canal, to be about 50 miles inland from the Gulf Coast, would cost $511 million and annually divert 3,358,000 acre-feet of water from East Texas to more arid regions to the west.

Work is nearing completion on another diversion project in the Texas Panhandle, a $103-million dam-pipeline complex on the Canadian River to supply municipal water to 11 West Texas cities. The pipeline system is 322-miles long, the longest such waterway ever built by the Reclamation Bureau.

Break Foreign Aid Deadlock

WASHINGTON - Now that the long deadlock over foreign aid has been broken, congressional leaders are talking more confidently of going home in September.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says he is shooting for adjournment around Labor Day of the session that has seen enactment of more legislation than any other of recent years. All major proposals by President Johnson that have come up for vote have won approval.

The agreement reached Tuesday by House and Senate conferees on reconciling the two versions of the foreign aid authorization bill clears away one stubborn obstacle.

Johnson's requests for foreign aid totaled $3,469 billion. The $3.36 billion figure finally approved includes $1.7 billion in military assistance abroad, the remainder in economic aid.

Both chambers are expected promptly to approve the compromise.

Shigeta Back In Hawaii to Work on Movie

HONOLULU AP -- The view from the 30th floor of the Ilikai Hotel looked good to Jimmy Shigeta. Before him in the twilight glow was the verdant sprawl of his home town.

"I get back here about twice a year," he said, "and each time it seems more wonderful than before."

Jimmy had returned this time not for a vacation, but to work. He has played in night clubs and concerts in Honolulu, but never before had he made a movie here. He is costarring with Elvis Presley in "Hawaiian Paradise," in which they play buddies who operate a helicopter service.

When he isn't working, Elvis is sequestered in his 22nd-floor wing of the Ilikai, surrounded by 14 aides and hangers-on.

Jimmy Shigeta is less remote. He travels freely about town, enjoying reunions with old pals and visiting with members of his vast family. "I've got cousins, nephews and nieces all over town" he explained. "They come in all sizes and colors, including blondes."

A third-generation Hawaiian of Japanese ancestry, the singer-actor was born in Kona on the big island of Hawaii and came to Oahu at an early age. As the lights of the city began their nightly sparkle, he pointed out places where he had lived, gone to school, etc.

"The most fun I remember as a kid was a sport we would enjoy after a cloudburst," Jimmy remarked. "We would go up in the hills over there and pick a hill with a nice slope to it. Then we would pick a big leaf from a ti tree, sit on it and slide down the hill like on a toboggan."

Other days were occupied with fishing in lagoons or surfing at Waikiki. Then one day the fun stopped.

"I was walking home from Sunday School that morning, not conscious that anything was happening," he recalled. "When I got to my house, my family came running out. They asked if I hadn't seen the bombing.

" 'What bombing?' I asked. I had seen some planes, but for a week previous there had been lots of maneuvers in the air over our house--we lived near Pearl Harbor.

"Just then a plane swooped over our house and I could see that crazy meatball on the wing. Then I knew it was no maneuver."

Jimmy attended Honolulu schools and entered the University of Hawaii at 16. Then he transferred to New York University, and that's where he got infected with show business. His father and brothers are engineers.

Julius Caesar was first to import a giraffe to Europe, exhibiting it in Rome about 46 B.C., according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Happiness Is Open Safe to Police Captain

HARRISBURG, Pa. AP--Happiness is an open safe to Capt. Joseph Dussia.

Dussia, 48, head of the state police crime laboratory, happens to be one of the best safe-crackers and lockpickers around.

"I learned at an early age that I had the ability to work with safes and locks," the police veteran says.

"After attending Michigan State University for two years as a premedical student, I contacted Harry Miller in Washington, D.C. Miller was one of the country's top lock and safe experts.

"We worked out a system of manipulation, which to me is a type of science. It's a way of opening safe locks by a combination of touch, hearing and seeing -- plus a thorough working knowledge of the inner part of the lock.

"The safe burglar doesn't operate by science. He just wants to get the contents. But a legitimate safe repair man has to protect the safe, too.

"I still don't have the system perfected, though. I have some locks in my quarters at police headquarters where I stay Monday through Friday.

"At home, I have 500 to 600 more. When I first began practicing at home I taught my wife to change the combinations of locks. It was a way of constantly testing myself."

Dussia is an accomplished lecturer on his favorite subject and teaches at Indiana, Iowa, and Western Reserve universities.

U.S. Route 67 Bridge Will Be Re—Opened Friday

The U.S. Route 67 bridge over the Black River north of Poplar Bluff will be re-opened to traffic at 1 p.m. Friday (August 20), W. D. Carney, Highway Department District 10 engineer at Sikeston, announced today.

One 160-foot span was demolished and another 200-foot span was damaged badly July 22 when a truck hauling a heavy tractor struck the structure.

The Highway Department threw all available forces into an all-out effort to get the bridge back into service. Repair time was cut from an estimated 60 days to 29 days.

"It is a fine example of hard work by Department people and cooperation by many contractors and other organizations in the area" said Carney.

After the mishap one special bridge maintenance crew under Jake Wilson, a Highway Department bridge maintenance foreman, rushed to the scene to start clearing away the wreckage. Another crew, under Foreman Louis Stegeman, started hauling material from emergency stockpiles over the state. A District 10 crew also was assigned to the job. And Paul Montgomery, Inc., of Poplar Bluff was employed to rebuild the destroyed span.

In the Department's Main Office at Jefferson City, a team of bridge designers worked overtime to design the new span. And as crews on the site finished clearing away the wreckage the plans were flown to Poplar Bluff July 31 by Leo Beckett, assistant to the chief engineer; Granville Phillips, assistant Maintenance engineer; and J. E. Little, a senior engineer in the Bridge Division.

Highway Department and contractor crews worked from daylight to dusk seven days a week, pushing the job to completion, even working one day in rain.

On August 1, nine days after the bridge collapsed, the wreckage was cleared away; by August 4 the pile driving was completed; by August 7 caps were poured on the pilings and by August 14 concrete was poured on the last span.

A special mix was used in the concrete to permit early opening.

"Contractors in the area chipped in to help, too," said Carney, "by loaning and renting equipment which we needed."

He especially cited the Porter DeWitt Construction Company of Poplar Bluff, the Keener Gravel Company of Dexter, the O. L Koch Construction Company of Thayer, the Penzel Construction Company of Jackson and the R. B. Potashnick Construction Company of Cape Girardeau.

Carney also mentioned the special efforts in supplying and fabricating reinforcing steel for the job by Carl Weber of Laclede Steel in St. Louis, Stupp Brothers of St. Louis and DeLong's, Inc. of Jefferson City.

Other organizations helped push the project along, too, by publicizing the work and its problems, handling traffic and other jobs. They included, Carney said, the Highway Patrol's Troop E at Poplar Bluff; Clyde Hendrix, Butler County sheriff; the Poplar Bluff Street and Police Departments; the Poplar Bluff Board of Public Works, the Ozark Border Electric Cooperative and the Poplar Bluff Daily American-Republic.

General supervision of the project was under S. J. White and Robert Gevecker of the Highway Department Bridge Division in Jefferson City.

Members of the Main Office bridge crews are Don Sides, John Jennings, Victor Nilges, Harold Hoelscher, Raymond Reinkemeyer, Woodrow Lambert, John Sanning, Floyd McKee, Bernard Wenzel, Adam Wieberg, Joseph Huhn, Shawn Malone, Bobby Carroll and Charles Huhman.

The District 10 crew included Boyce Hoefer, Charles Smithton, Billy Carroll, Alvin Feuerhahn and Dan Ford.

Main Office employees who worked on the bridge design were K. R. Woods, H. M. Miller, C. D. Weaver, C. S. Alcott, H. M. Mager, R. A. Bryant and J. E. Little.

Earl Wills, Jr. of the District 10 office was in charge of engineering at the site. Cost of the replacement is estimated at about $60,000.

Their Recognition

In recognition of their exploratory achievement, Lewis was appointed governor of the Louisiana territory after their return, while Clark was appointed a general of the territorial militia.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to say a word or two about that woman who signed herself "Screaming Mimi." She's the wife who was burned up because her husband who worked the midnight shift had the habit of saying to her, when he left the house to go to work, "Now go right to bed honey." Mimi wrote: "Where in the world WOULD I be going at that hour?"

I'm a husband who worked the midnight shift, too. I never told my wife to go straight to bed, but maybe that's where I made my big mistake. She found plenty of places to go at that hour--like every tavern and dance hall in town.

The worst part of it was that she left our kids, 9 and 6 years of age, alone in the apartment. It took me almost two years to catch up with her. When I did I really laid down the law.

So, Ann Landers, when a man leaves for the midnight shift and tells his wife to go straight to bed, why don't you stay out of it? Maybe he knows her better than you do.-MR. EXPERIENCE

Dear Mr.: Thanks for the clue. I consider myself properly told off.

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago our son was killed in an accident. Cal was 25 years old. He spoke often of a young woman I will call Marie. My husband and I had never met Marie or her people.

The day before the funeral Marie came to our home and told us that she and Cal had planned to be married at Christmas. She said her life was as good as over and she wished she had died with our son.

The poor girl fainted during the services and had to be carried out. My husband and I were having a difficult time keeping our composure and she did not make it any easier for us.

Every night after work Marie goes to the cemetery and puts a red rose on Cal's grave. She telephones me every evening and comes over about three times a week. She insists on helping me clean house, wants to cook and bake for the family, run errands. Anything to feel close to Cal, she says.

My husband and I are slowly recovering from our grief but this girl's presence is a constant reminder of our grief and we'd prefer to see less of her. What is your advice?-- MRS. B.

Dear Mrs. B.: Marie needs professional help. Urge her to get it. The girl's devotion to you is unhealthy.

Hanging around Cal's family helps feed the fantasy that he is still alive. It's not good for her or for you. When she gets the help she needs her doctor will insist she cut down her visits to your place, and the problem will be solved.

Dear Ann Landers: I read your column just to see what some people in this world consider "a problem." Honestly, with all the terrible things that are happening in the world, it's amazing how some idiot woman can write and ask what to about a husband who puts ketchup on his mashed potatoes.

My old man used to empty bottles, too--but it wasn't ketchup he was hooked on. It was gin. My mother had to work to support the family and we were lucky if there was enough to eat. I'd give that lady ketchup all right, one tomato at a time.--SICK OF TWO BIT WIENERS

Dear Sick: Thanks for putting my thoughts into your words. What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits-- the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex--Ten ways to Cool it." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a sfamped, self-addressed envelope.

U.S. Route 67 Bridge Will Be Re-Opened Friday

The U.S. Route 67 bridge over the Black River north of Poplar Bluff will be re-opened to traffic at 1 p.m. Friday (August 20), W. D. Carney, Highway Department District 10 engineer at Sikeston, announced today.

One 160-foot span was demolished and another 200-foot span was damaged badly July 22 when a truck hauling a heavy tractor struck the structure.

The Highway Department threw all available forces into an all-out effort to get the bridge back into service. Repair time was cut from an estimated 60 days to 29 days.

"It is a fine example of hard work by Department people and cooperation by many contractors and other organizations in the area" said Carney.

After the mishap one special bridge maintenance crew under Jake Wilson, a Highway Department bridge maintenance foreman, rushed to the scene to start clearing away the wreckage. Another crew, under Foreman Louis Stegeman, started hauling material from emergency stockpiles over the state. A District 10 crew also was assigned to the job. And Paul Montgomery, Inc., of Poplar Bluff was employed to rebuild the destroyed span.

In the Department's Main Office at Jefferson City, a team of bridge designers worked overtime to design the new span. And as crews on the site finished clearing away the wreckage the plans were flown to Poplar Bluff July 31 by Leo Beckett, assistant to the chief engineer; Granville Phillips, assistant Maintenance engineer; and J. E. Little, a senior engineer in the Bridge Division.

Highway Department and contractor crews worked from daylight to dusk seven days a week, pushing the job to completion, even working one day in rain.

On August 1, nine days after the bridge collapsed, the wreckage was cleared away; by August 4 the pile driving was completed; by August 7 caps were poured on the pilings and by August 14 concrete was poured on the last span.

A special mix was used in the concrete to permit early opening.

"Contractors in the area chipped in to help, too," said Carney, "by loaning and renting equipment which we needed."

He especially cited the Porter DeWitt Construction Company of Poplar Bluff, the Keener Gravel Company of Dexter, the O. L Koch Construction Company of Thayer, the Penzel Construction Company of Jackson and the R. B. Potashnick Construction Company of Cape Girardeau.

Carney also mentioned the special efforts in supplying and fabricating reinforcing steel for the job by Carl Weber of Laclede Steel in St. Louis, Stupp Brothers of St. Louis and DeLong's, Inc. of Jefferson City.

Other organizations helped push the project along, too, by publicizing the work and its problems, handling traffic and other jobs. They included, Carney said, the Highway Patrol's Troop E at Poplar Bluff; Clyde Hendrix, Butler County sheriff; the Poplar Bluff Street and Police Departments; the Poplar Bluff Board of Public Works, the Ozark Border Electric Cooperative and the Poplar Bluff Daily American-Republic.

General supervision of the project was under S. J. White and Robert Gevecker of the Highway Department Bridge Division in Jefferson City.

Members of the Main Office bridge crews are Don Sides, John Jennings, Victor Nilges, Harold Hoelscher, Raymond Reinkemeyer, Woodrow Lambert, John Sanning, Floyd McKee, Bernard Wenzel, Adam Wieberg, Joseph Huhn, Shawn Malone, Bobby Carroll and Charles Huhman.

The District 10 crew included Boyce Hoefer, Charles Smithton, Billy Carroll, Alvin Feuerhahn and Dan Ford.

Main Office employees who worked on the bridge design were K. R. Woods, H. M. Miller, C. D. Weaver, C. S. Alcott, H. M. Mager, R. A. Bryant and J. E. Little.

Earl Wills, Jr. of the District 10 office was in charge of engineering at the site. Cost of the replacement is estimated at about $60,000.

Their Recognition

In recognition of their exploratory achievement, Lewis was appointed governor of the Louisiana territory after their return, while Clark was appointed a general of the territorial militia.

Sikeston Standard:

Gentlemen:

We would like enough of Monday, August 16, 1965 Sikeston Standards to cover this one dollar bill. The article we are interested in is the marriage of Miss Carolyn Corbin to Mr. James Clay.

We appreciate your coverage of this event as we requested and would like to tell you that the picture in your paper, as are all pictures recently, is the best of any paper in the district.

Thank you,

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to say a word or two about that woman who signed herself "Screaming Mimi." She's the wife who was burned up because her husband who worked the midnight shift had the habit of saying to her, when he left the house to go to work, "Now go right to bed honey." Mimi wrote: "Where in the world WOULD I be going at that hour?"

I'm a husband who worked the midnight shift, too. I never told my wife to go straight to bed, but maybe that's where I made my big mistake. She found plenty of places to go at that hour--like every tavern and dance hall in town.

The worst part of it was that she left our kids, 9 and 6 years of age, alone in the apartment. It took me almost two years to catch up with her. When I did I really laid down the law.

So, Ann Landers, when a man leaves for the midnight shift and tells his wife to go straight to bed, why don't you stay out of it? Maybe he knows her better than you do.-MR. EXPERIENCE

Dear Mr.: Thanks for the clue. I consider myself properly told off.

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago our son was killed in an accident. Cal was 25 years old. He spoke often of a young woman I will call Marie. My husband and I had never met Marie or her people.

The day before the funeral Marie came to our home and told us that she and Cal had planned to be married at Christmas. She said her life was as good as over and she wished she had died with our son.

The poor girl fainted during the services and had to be carried out. My husband and I were having a difficult time keeping our composure and she did not make it any easier for us.

Every night after work Marie goes to the cemetery and puts a red rose on Cal's grave. She telephones me every evening and comes over about three times a week. She insists on helping me clean house, wants to cook and bake for the family, run errands. Anything to feel close to Cal, she says.

My husband and I are slowly recovering from our grief but this girl's presence is a constant reminder of our grief and we'd prefer to see less of her. What is your advice?-- MRS. B.

Dear Mrs. B.: Marie needs professional help. Urge her to get it. The girl's devotion to you is unhealthy.

Hanging around Cal's family helps feed the fantasy that he is still alive. It's not good for her or for you. When she gets the help she needs her doctor will insist she cut down her visits to your place, and the problem will be solved.

Dear Ann Landers: I read your column just to see what some people in this world consider "a problem." Honestly, with all the terrible things that are happening in the world, it's amazing how some idiot woman can write and ask what to about a husband who puts ketchup on his mashed potatoes.

My old man used to empty bottles, too--but it wasn't ketchup he was hooked on. It was gin. My mother had to work to support the family and we were lucky if there was enough to eat. I'd give that lady ketchup all right, one tomato at a time.--SICK OF TWO BIT WHINERS

Dear Sick: Thanks for putting my thoughts into your words. What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits-- the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex--Ten ways to Cool it." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Not Only at Weddings

Throwing of old shoes as a good luck token has not always been confined to weddings. In Scotland, old shoes were tossed at persons starting out on an adventure, at a sailor embarking on his first voyage and other such occasions.

The 23-year-old soldier was graduated from East Prairie High School in 1960.

Not Only at Weddings

Throwing of old shoes as a good luck token has not always been confined to weddings. In Scotland, old shoes were tossed at persons starting out on an adventure, at a sailor embarking on his first voyage and other such occasions.

Money Plans Sprout

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK -- Plans for improving the world's money and credit arrangements are sprouting fast these days. And a real but polite donnybrook may develop behind doors at the September meeting in Washington of the members of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund.

Some ideas on how to finance world economic growth are pretty far out from Uncle Sam's point of view.

Proposals range from letting matters work themselves out to setting up an entirely new kind of monetary reserve just for use when financial dealings between nations and foreign traders get sticky. This new species of international money would supersede the present way of paying bills in gold, dollars, pounds or other national currencies.

Here are some of the plans, likely and unlikely, from the conservative to the radical:

French President Charles de Gaulle proposes the world go back to a full gold standard, abandoned in the early 1930s. Opponents contend there isn't enough gold available to back the money and credit needed in today's greatly expanded world economy.

Another proposal is to make foreign exchange rates flexible, so that a currency can expand or contract in line with deficits or surpluses. Some would swell all nations' reserves at once. Others would expand a nation's reserves only when its needs are obvious.

The above proposals have little effective backing so far.

A sizable following is claimed for a plan to change the International Monetary Fund from a regulating and lending to a money-creating central bank. This would provide a new world currency for transaction of business between nations.

Others plug for creating a Collective Reserve Unit -- CRU. This would be backed by the currencies of the 10 biggest financial powers in fixed proportions. Nations would hold the new CRU in their reserves along with gold, dollars, etc. They would use CRU to settle accounts among themselves.

France wants CRU backed by gold instead of national currencies. The United States fears this would mean raising the price of gold and thus devaluing the dollar.

A more conservative approach, and the one believed favored by U.S. monetary authorities, is to keep the 103-nation International Monetary Fund a dominant factor in any plan. This would make any new kind of reserve, CRU or otherwise, only a supplement to present reserves of gold and dollars.

Next: When will the United States and others be ready to try something new?

Master Fact

The pimpernel is a small herb of the primrose family. It is native to Europe but has been naturalized in North America. It has been called the shepherd's clock and the poor man's weather glass because its tiny dark center opens up only in bright sunshine, giving it the appearance of a clock or weatherglass.

Today In U. S. History

Today is Thursday, Aug. 19, the 231st day of 1965. There are 134 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1812, the U.S. frigate Constitution disabled the British frigate Guerriere in a battle in the North Atlantic. The victory was a tonic for the young U.S. Navy which had fared poorly in the early days of the War of 1812.

On this date

In 1692, five women convicted of witchcraft were hanged at Salem.

In 1870, the late financier and statesman Bernard Baruch was born.

In 1942, a commando attack was launched by the Allies on the Nazi-occupied port of Dieppe, France.

In 1944, the U.S. 3rd Army smashed into the suburbs of Paris.

In 1955, severe floods took 186 lives in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Ten years ago--Berber tribesmen opened attacks on Moroccan villages during negotiations between the French government and nationalist and French officials of Morocco.

Five years ago — A U.S. Air Force C119 flying boxcar cargo plane succeeded in snatching in air a capsule ejected from Discoverer 14 satellite over the North Pacific.

One year ago — An audit ordered by President Johnson estimated his family fortune at $3.5 million.

Adam Cartwright Trades In Gun

ST. LOUIS - Adam Cartwright has traded his six-gun for the sword Excalibur, and he is hanging around with Sir Lancelot and Queen Guinevere, instead of Hoss and Little Joe.

Sound confusing? Not to actor Pernell Roberts, who for six seasons starred as the eldest son of rancher Ben Cartwright on the "Bonanza" television series.

This week he opened as King Arthur in the St. Louis Municipal Opera's production of "Camelot".

"I'm having a wonderful time," he said after his opening night performance before a crowd of 10,825. "I'm enjoying myself, working at my craft, taking pride in my work."

Roberts said he left "Bonanza" after his contract expired "because I wasn't happy in my work." This season, Paw, Little Joe and Hoss will continue without him, explaining to viewers that Adam has "gone East."

"Who rolls up the sidewalk in this town at night? Winos, mostly!"

DOUBLE TRIBUTE—Spain plans to issue a companion to this United States commemorative stamp marking the 400th anniversary of the settlement of Florida. The American version will be issued Aug. 28 in St. Augustine, which was founded by the Spanish and is the oldest continuous settlement in the United States. A duplicate of the design has been sent to Madrid, at the request of the government of Spain.

Today In U. S. History

Today is Thursday, Aug. 19, the 231st day of 1965. There are 134 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1812, the U.S. frigate Constitution disabled the British frigate Guerriere in a battle in the North Atlantic. The victory was a tonic for the young U.S. Navy which had fared poorly in the early days of the War of 1812.

On this date

In 1692, five women convicted of witchcraft were hanged at Salem.

In 1870, the late financier and statesman Bernard Baruch was born.

In 1942, a commando attack was launched by the Allies on the Nazi-occupied port of Dieppe, France.

In 1944, the U.S. 3rd Army smashed into the suburbs of Paris.

In 1955, severe floods took 186 lives in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Ten years ago--Berber tribesmen opened attacks on Moroccan villages during negotiations between the French government and nationalist and French officials of Morocco.

Five years ago — A U.S. Air Force C119 flying boxcar cargo plane succeeded in snatching in air a capsule ejected from Discoverer 14 satellite over the North Pacific.

One year ago — An audit ordered by President Johnson estimated his family fortune at $3.5 million.

Adam Cartwright Trades In Gun

ST. LOUIS - Adam Cartwright has traded his six-gun for the sword Excalibur, and he is hanging around with Sir Lancelot and Queen Guinevere, instead of Hoss and Little Joe.

Sound confusing? Not to actor Pernell Roberts, who for six seasons starred as the eldest son of rancher Ben Cartwright on the "Bonanza" television series.

This week he opened as King Arthur in the St. Louis Municipal Opera's production of "Camelot".

"I'm having a wonderful time," he said after his opening night performance before a crowd of 10,825. "I'm enjoying myself, working at my craft, taking pride in my work."

Roberts said he left "Bonanza" after his contract expired "because I wasn't happy in my work." This season, Paw, Little Joe and Hoss will continue without him, explaining to viewers that Adam has "gone East."

Only 5 of the 39 British monarchs since William the Conqueror are buried in foreign soil.
